Jury in Boise trial convicts Charboneau

By MARILYN HAUK ESSEX
Special to The Times-News

BOISE — Jamie Charboneau was found guilty of first-degree murder Thursday in the shooting death of his former wife after a jury deliberated about 13 hours.

Charboneau, 25, expressed no emotion as the verdict was read. "I told him to expect the worst," said defense attorney Randy Stoker.

A juror said they would have reached a speedier decision had the state not discarded evidence in the case.

The six-man, six-woman jury also found Charboneau guilty of using a firearm while committing a crime — a verdict special prosecutor Marc Haws said can be considered when sentencing Charboneau.

Stoker said Charboneau will appeal the convictions once sentencing is handed down.

Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker ordered a pre-sentencing investigation, in which a report on Charboneau's background will be made for consideration in sentencing. Charboneau could receive the death penalty for his conviction.

MARILYN ARBAUGH
Slain outside rural home

"I didn't see how it could be any other way," said Jim Arbaugh, father of Marilyn Arbaugh, 36, who was shot July 1 at her rural Jerome County home.

Authorities testified that the woman was shot about 15 times with a Remington rifle in the alleyway between a potato cellar and horse corral at El Rancho 93, the ranch where she lived.

"He chose to waste away his life," said a tearful Mary Arbaugh, the victim's mother.

Misty McKeel, Charboneau's mother, declined to talk to a reporter. "You didn't say anything good about Jamie during this whole thing, and I don't want to talk to you now," McKeel told a reporter who has listened to daily testimony. Charboneau's sister, Becky Allstrom of Oklahoma, also declined comment.

Becker said the jury was thorough, and went through numerous pieces of evidence presented in eight days of testimony.

Juror John Keller said a guilty verdict to the charge of first-degree murder would have been returned sooner if the state hadn't thrown away evidence. "The bullet thrown away was the big hang up," he said.

Jerome County deputy Ernest Coats testified that former prosecutor Dan Adamson instructed him to get rid of a bullet casing found by a wagon at El Rancho 93, where Arbaugh lived at the time of her death.

However, Adamson said in later testimony that he told the deputy the spent casing wasn't important.

Tiffnie Arbaugh, the victim's older daughter, testified that she accidentally discharged her mother's pistol during the tense moments surrounding the July 1 killing.

Keller said the defense's claims that Tiffnie fired the fatal shots wasn't a factor in the jury's deliberations. Charboneau made that claim in a pre-trial hearing, and Stoker raised that possibility in opening statements and closing arguments.

The jury began deliberating about 4 p.m. Wednesday and reached a verdict about 4:15 p.m. Thursday. A total

Uproar boils over Bitburg

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — President Reagan and Chancellor Helmut Kohl tried Thursday to blunt criticism of their plans to lay a wreath at a German military cemetery by inviting relatives of Nazi resisters to join the ceremony.

The three-week-old uproar over Reagan's planned journey to the Bitburg gravesites on Sunday raged on as the leaders of seven nations sipped champagne and dined in Rhineland castles outside of Bonn on the eve of their two-day economic summit meeting.

At a crowded reception at the Augustusburg Castle, Reagan sipped champagne and reminisced with French President Francois Mitterrand about his former days as a Hollywood actor, noting that "I'm talking about the days when actors still kept their clothes on."

After a working dinner at Schloss Falkenlust, a castle built in 1733, Reagan was driven in his armored limousine back to Schloss Gymnich, the guest castle where he is staying.

In addition to meeting with Kohl, Reagan held private talks with Mitterrand, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

During the meeting between Nakasone and Reagan, the Japanese prime minister asked the president to end a ban on the export of oil from Alaska, according to Japanese official who spoke on condition he not be identified. Such exports were prohibited by Congress in the early 1970s.

Nakasone told Reagan the change would improve Japan's lop-sided balance of trade with the United States and lessen his country's dependence on oil from the Middle East, the official said.

The leaders remained divided on sensitive issues, such as the starting date for new international trade talks; what, if any, action to take to curb fluctuations in the value of the U.S. dollar, and European participation in Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense research program.

The decision to bring relatives of Nazi resisters to Bitburg was announced by Peter Boenisch, spokesman for the Bonn government, after a 50-minute meeting between Reagan and Kohl, the West German chancellor.

West German leaders hailed Reagan's courage in resisting pressure from the United States to cancel the visit.

Boenisch said the relatives' delegation will include a son of Lt. Col. Klaus von Stauffenberg, who was executed in 1944 for his central role in a plot to kill Adolf Hitler by putting a bomb under a table in his conference room.

Verdict against 'prophet' in dual slaying

The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — A Provo jury Thursday night found Ron Lafferty guilty of two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of his sister-in-law and her infant daughter last summer.

The nine-man, three-women panel also found the self-proclaimed prophet guilty of two counts of conspiracy to commit murder and two counts of aggravated burglary.

The jury deliberated nearly three hours after the defense surprisingly rested its case when Lafferty told his attorney to refrain from pursuing the case further.

The penalty phase will begin Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Defense Attorney Richard Johnson was explaining to the jury that when Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica, were killed, Lafferty was overwrought because of his recent divorce. But in the middle of the statement, Lafferty interrupted Johnson. Afterwards, Johnson said Lafferty asked him not to pursue that line of reasoning.

"Mr. Lafferty asked me to restrict my comments," Johnson said.

Lafferty also restricted Johnson's defense strategy. Earlier in the day, Johnson said he had planned to use testimony from several psychiatrists to argue for a reduction of the murder counts to manslaughter due to diminished mental capacity.

"It just seems to me to do something like that would be an admission of guilt, and I am not prepared to do that," Lafferty told 4th District Judge J. Robert Bullock.

Chief Deputy Utah County Prosecutor Wayne Watson called Lafferty "the worst kind of criminal."

"He solicits other people to do his dirty work for him," Watson said in his closing statement. "I don't buy the argument that you can be at your best for 40 years and then you're entitled to slash the throats of a woman and her baby."

The 43-year-old Lafferty, an excommunicated Mormon and one-time member of the obscure "School of the Prophets" sect, equated Johnson's defense strategy with plea-bargaining.

BRENDA LAFFERTY
Victim of Utah attack

"Mr. Lafferty has the right to direct his own defense," Bullock told Johnson.

Before resting his case with the testimony of just a single witness — Lafferty's mother, Claudine — Johnson unsuccessfully tried to have three of Lafferty's personal journals admitted as evidence.

Chief Deputy Utah County Attorney Wayne Watson objected, saying the journals would provide jurors with the same kind of evidence that may have been given by psychiatrists.

Lafferty was charged with two counts of capital homicide in the July 24 slayings of Mrs. Lafferty and her daughter. Mrs. Lafferty was a native of Kimberly, Idaho.

Another brother, Dan Lafferty, was convicted in the slayings earlier this year and was sentenced to consecutive life terms.

Prosecutors had introduced into evidence a hand-written document they said Ron Lafferty believed was a divine revelation ordering him to

Senate shreds Reagan deficit reduction plan

By DAVID ESPO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A rebellious Senate voted Thursday to pare the administration's defense buildup by $17.7 billion over three years and provide full cost of living benefits to federal retirees as it methodically shredded a multi-billion-dollar deficit reduction package endorsed by President Reagan.

"For once grass roots America has won out over the military industrial complex," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, as he and Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon won approval for their plan to hold the 1986 rise in Pentagon spending constant with inflation.

The Pentagon buildup has "created a new set of welfare queens — defense contractors," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. Even with the change, defense spending would rise by about $20 billion next year.

The 80-18 vote restoring full retirement benefits for civil service and military workers as well as veterans was expected, coming one day after the Senate voted to scrap a proposed curtailment of Social Security cost-of-living benefits.

That left the original Republican budget in tatters, with further efforts likely to restore proposed cuts in Medicare and Medicaid and numerous other federal programs.

Even so, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole vowed to "revisit" several of the programs already voted on, and said that rather than spelling the end of efforts to reduce federal deficits, "I think it's just the beginning."

But at the same time, he served notice on the president, attending an economic summit meeting in West Germany, that "we made our best effort and now we have to try something different" than the original approach that provided a 3 percent after-inflation increase for defense, and cut deeply into many domestic programs.

WASHINGTON — House and Senate committees mounted a broad attack Thursday on water pollution, approving bills to require cleaner drinking water and to continue federal support for local sewage and wastewater treatment facilities.

The actions by the Senate Environment Committee and the House Public Works health subcommittee represented defeats for both Reagan administration budget-cutters and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The two panels gave unanimous voice-vote approval to similar bills that would force EPA to issue standards limiting the levels of about five dozen

FBI drug raids net scores of cycle gang members

Agents take suspect into custody in Bridgeport, Conn.

By MERRILL HARTSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than 125 members and associates of the Hells Angels and other motorcycle gangs were arrested on drug and racketeering charges Thursday in FBI-led pre-dawn raids in 11 states, the Justice Department said.

A state trooper in Connecticut was shot, but not seriously wounded, and a FBI agent was struck in the head with a sledgehammer during the raids, authorities said.

The arrests and searches were conducted in territories covered by FBI field offices in Albany, N.Y.; Boston; Charlotte, N.C.; Cleveland; New Haven, Conn.; New Orleans; New York; Newark, N.J.; Omaha, Neb.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Richmond, Va.; and Sacramento, San Diego and San Francisco, Calif.

In Stratford, Conn., Trooper Angel Gonzales, 31, was wounded in the hip during a raid, said state police spokesman Adam Berluti. Gonzales was reported in stable condition. Berluti said a suspect was in custody.

In addition, an unidentified FBI agent was treated for minor injuries after being attacked with a sledgehammer in the same raid.

FBI Director William H. Webster credited the raids, dubbed "Operation Roughrider," with "averting five potential murders." Bureau spokesmen declined to elaborate.

Drugs obtained during the undercover operation had a street value of $2 million and included methamphetamine, cocaine, marijuana, hashish, PCP and LSD, Webster said.

The Drug Enforcement Administration has said that some motorcycle gangs, once the essence of disorganized life on wheels, are believed to control between half and three-fourths of the nation's illicit methamphetamine traffic.

In a joint statement, Webster and Attorney General Edwin Meese III hailed the arrests in some 50 locations as a demonstration of continuing progress by federal authorities in cracking down on criminal activity by motorcycle gang members.

The arrests represented "the beginning of the overt stage of a complex investigation begun in early 1982 by the Baltimore office of the FBI and code-named 'Roughrider,'" Meese said.

In 1981, the joint statement said, the FBI began investigating "illegal activities of outlaw motorcycle gangs" under its Organized Crime Investigative Program after authorities found that the various gangs had increased in size and that many had become international organizations.

"Some gangs had established relationships with traditional organized crime families," Webster said, "and many were known to use threats, violence and other criminal activity, including illegal drug trafficking, to accumulate wealth by criminal means."

Attempts to determine how many Hells Angels figures were caught in the raids — and what other motorcycle gangs were involved — proved futile. In addition, neither the Justice Department nor the FBI identified any of the individuals arrested.

Valve may be illness source

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An illegal valve that could have allowed the mixing of pasteurized milk with raw milk may have led to the nation's largest outbreak of salmonella illness, public health officials said Thursday.

"At this point, it doesn't appear there's any more likely cause than that," said Dr. Bernard Turnock, acting director of the state Public Health Department. But he cautioned that tests are still being conducted and "none of the other possibilities can be discounted at this point."

As of Thursday, 14,828 cases of salmonella food poisoning had been reported in six states since March, 13,339 of them confirmed.

Burger halts Turner execution

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Willie Lloyd Turner's scheduled execution for murder and robbery was called off Thursday when Chief Justice Warren Burger refused to dissolve a stay, only hours before Turner was to die in the electric chair.

No new date for the execution was set.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had stayed the 9 p.m. MDT execution on Monday, because Turner has an appeal pending before the Supreme Court. Burger informed the state he would not lift the lower court's order, said David Hathcock, a spokesman for the attorney general.

Ontario leader loses majority

TORONTO (AP) — Premier Frank Miller, whose Progressive Conservative Party has governed Ontario for 41 years, barely won re-election Thursday but lost his majority in the provincial Parliament.

The Tories won just 52 seats in the 125-seat legislature of Canada's largest province — 20 fewer than they held before the election. The Liberals won 48 seats and the socialist New Democrats won 25.

One of the only known Liberal candidates, former major league baseball pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, was defeated in a district in Windsor, across the border from Detroit.

Conservatives lose in voting

LONDON (AP) — The centrist alliance of the Liberal and Social Democratic parties scored gains at the expense of the governing Conservatives as results began arriving from elections Thursday for county councils in England and Wales.

The voting was considered the biggest electoral test for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government since she won a second term in June 1983.

Storms dampen eastern states

By The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms rumbled across the eastern [illegible] Thursday, spawning a tornado in northwestern Florida.

Cloudy skies and intermittent showers reached from the central Gulf coast through Tennessee and the Carolinas to southern New England, where communities have been facing the worst dry spell in 20 years.

In Florida, a twister touched down about five miles west of Fort Walton Beach, the National Weather Service said. There was no report of any damage. A tornado watch was issued through 7 p.m. MDT for portions of southern and central Alabama, west-central Georgia and northwestern Florida.

Comatose woman bore bruise

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Martha "Sunny" von Bulow had a bruise on her face when she was admitted to a hospital in an irreversible coma, a doctor testified Thursday in Rhode Island's retrial on charges he twice tried to kill her with insulin injections.

Prosecutors say the bruise supports the contention that Mrs. von Bulow struggled with an assailant before she fell into a coma. Lawyers for her husband, Claus von Bulow, say she caused the coma by abusing drugs, alcohol and sweets.

Ice may have torn off engine

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A jetliner that lost an engine over the New Mexico desert last month showed no sign of mechanical problems, and the engine may have been hit by a chunk of ice, federal officials said Thursday.

"There was no fault in the aircraft that could have permitted the engine just to fall off," said Al Crawford, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator.

The evaluation of the engine revealed no mechanical problem with it or the aircraft, said Don Llorente, acting chief of the Los Angeles field office of the NTSB. But the engine showed "evidence of foreign object damage," he said.

Agent tells of 'dangle' ploy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A retired FBI agent testified Thursday he used a Soviet woman in a "dangle" operation, an attempt to convince Russian officials he was available for espionage work.

John Hunt, under cross-examination at the espionage trial of Svetlana and Nikolay Ogorodnikov, admitted he knew the term "dangle" meant "to make a person appear that he was malleable for espionage work."

New look at adult magazines examines effects on children

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has approved a new version of a widely criticized study that will try to determine whether Playboy, Penthouse and Hustler magazines influence sexual exploitation of children and delinquency.

The scaled-down research project, financed by the department but conducted by American University here, will review 660 issues of the publications and analyze such content as "the use of children in fairy tale sex scenarios . . ."

"Sexual depiction of children with fairy tale characters and themes such as Santa Claus, Dorothy and the Wizard of Oz, Snow White, etc." will be "of special significance in this final analysis," the new project design said.

Other "issues of particular concern" include "children involved sexually with 'influential' adults (member of government, police officer, doctor, teacher, counselor, military personnel, member of the clergy, etc.)," according to the new research document.

The 22-month study, which began in December 1983, will now analyze explicit text, picture and cartoons portraying children. If time allows and department approval is given, the study also will analyze advice columns and letters to the editor in the three adult magazines.

The maximum approved cost is $734,371, compared with $798,531 for the original proposal, which would have included reviews of general news magazines and other literature.

of about 13 hours was spent in the jury room.

"I feel very satisfied that the family has been vindicated, especially some of the outrageous allegations concerning the daughters," Haws said.

The victim's father said he felt good about the first-degree murder conviction, "but I still don't understand why the charges were dropped."

Becker dismissed the charges of kidnapping and grand theft after the prosecution rested its case. Stoker argued that Jerome County had no jurisdiction in those cases because the acts didn't happen there.

The kidnapping and grand theft charges stemmed from Arbaugh's allegations that Charboneau abducted her and stole her car after she finished work June 21.

Haws said every trial has ebbs and flows. When the two charges were dropped, "at that point I was very low," Haws said.

Arbaugh's parents said they hope for a sentence that will ensure Charboneau would not be free for a long time. "I'd be afraid if he got out again," said Jim Arbaugh.

"I don't ever want to see him on the streets," Mrs. Arbaugh said.

Jim Arbaugh said the verdict wouldn't end the nightmare the family has been living since July 1. "It'll never be over — never," he said.

"remove" the victims and two other Utah County residents.

Lafferty, who tried to hang himself in his Utah County Jail cell in December, had undergone a number of psychiatric evaluations prior to Bullock's declaring him competent to stand trial. Prior to the suicide attempt, Lafferty had complained of being bothered by evil spirits.

Over Watson's objections, Bullock had decided to allow defense testimony from Dr. C. Jeff Groesbeck of Utah State Hospital, but during a short recess, Lafferty indicated he wouldn't allow it.

"He told me during the break that he does not feel comfortable with the defense and that he does not want me to go through with it. I told him I think it's absolutely necessary," Johnson said.

Over a lunch break, Johnson tried again to convince Lafferty to change his mind.

The defendant's mother, Claudine Lafferty, denied the testimony of prosecution witnesses who said she had been aware of her son's plans to kill her daughter-in-law and granddaughter.

As she left the stand and passed her son, Mrs. Lafferty was seen to mouth the words, "I love you."

After the prosecution had rested Thursday morning, Johnson filed a motion for a mistrial, saying Watson's opening statement was needlessly gruesome and covered ground not supported by testimony.

Bullock denied the motion.

swiftly, when Dole won, 79-17, adoption of a non-binding amendment urging enactment of a minimum tax on profitable corporations and wealthy individuals. Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said, "This is not a tax increase," and said money raised through such a tax would be used only to reduce individual tax rates.

The result would be no reduction in the deficit, and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., complained that made it a "meaningless addendum" to the Republican budget originally designed to reduce red ink by $295 billion over three years. Reagan has said he opposes any tax increase this year.

Before adjourning for the night, the Senate began debate on an amendment to restore $900 million in proposed Medicaid cuts over three years, eliminating a proposed cap that states had found objectionable. Medicare cuts would be reduced by $1.7 billion over three years, scaling back on proposed increases to beneficiaries but retaining a proposed freeze on payments to doctors and hospitals. Despite the restorations, the two programs would be cut by a total of $17.5 billion under the proposal, expected to come to a vote today.

In addition, the GOP leadership has reached an "understanding" with dissident Republicans for a partial restoration of proposed cuts in postal subsidies to small newspapers, and has made progress toward a compromise to add back some of the funds proposed cut from health and education.

In voting for what Hatfield termed a "historic" change in defense, the Senate spurned a trans-Atlantic lobbying campaign by the traveling president. And Dole apparently considered seeking to reverse the vote, only to drop the idea because he noted it was "five minutes after midnight in Bonn, too late for calls to come over."

Grassley and other advocates of the provision said it would have no impact on national security, but was aimed at rooting out waste and inefficiency at the Pentagon.

He also accused Weinberger of practicing "political blackmail" by suggesting to senators that bases in their home states might be closed if the administration didn't get all the funding it wanted. Dole denied that on Weinberger's behalf, saying the defense chief "didn't threaten to close their bases."

ment-affecting contaminants now found in tap water.

Also cleared for floor action by the Republican-controlled Senate committee was a bill that would continue federal assistance for state and local sewer and waste treatment projects through 1991.

The proposal, which is stirring political problems because of a revised allocation formula, would provide $18 billion in grants and loans over the next nine years — three times what was sought by the administration, which wants to abolish the entire program by 1990.

Under that measure, providing $2.4 billion for sewers and wastewater treatment facilities in fiscal 1986, Idaho would receive $17.1 million, compared with $11.7 million under the existing formula.

The legislation would also continue the requirement that businesses depositing waste into the nation's waterways secure discharge permits every five years. A coalition of business, labor and farm groups had been pushing for 10-year terms.

The bill also states that when permits are reissued, their anti-pollution standards cannot be weakened. However the legislation put-off for a year, until July 1988, the date for industries to comply with discharge standards still being formulated by EPA.

Senators and representatives voiced dissatisfaction with the pace of such regulatory action by EPA, which has issued standards for only 24 contaminants since the original Safe Drinking Water Act was enacted in 1972.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House panel, noted that 22 of the regulated substances date back to a list of hazardous substances prepared by the U.S. Public Health Service in 1962.

The legislation would require EPA to write standards on 14 substances it first talked about regulating in 1982 and another 50 that have been under consideration since 1983.

Both the Senate and House bills would also require drinking water purification facilities to begin monitoring water for hundreds of contaminants not mentioned in the legislation or currently under regulation.

The House subcommittee acted against the express wishes of EPA Administrator Lee Thomas, who said forcing the agency to write regulations would produce "unwarranted rigidity."

"Mandated lists reduce our ability to adjust priorities within the agency in response to new and emerging problems," Thomas wrote in a letter to Waxman.

Weightlessness effects observed

Spacelab experiment repair brings joy to scientist's face

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a shout of joy and the ring of laughter, Spacelab 3 scientist Taylor Wang announced from orbit Thursday that he had repaired an experiment he has been waiting for nine years to operate in space.

"It's working, it's working," Wang announced after power surged to an instrument called the Drop Dynamics Module.

"When it came on, you've never seen such joy on anyone's face," said astronaut Don Lind, a Spacelab crewmate.

Wang had worked feverishly for more than two days to repair the science instrument, a device which he helped develop. Its purpose is to study the effects of weightlessness on drops of fluid and the results could lead to improvements in metallurgical and chemical industrial processes.

The repair was particularly good news for the science team of Challenger's spacelab mission. Three experiments already had malfunctioned and are beyond repair aboard the science module.

Earlier, the astronauts tidied up the cages of their space menagerie of monkeys and rats, and reported that a sickly monkey seemed to be feeling better.

Scientists said the restoration of Wang's experiment means that data is being gathered now from 12 instruments, assuring Spacelab 3 has become a scientific success.

They were particularly pleased with two crystal-growing devices. The furnace-like equipment is taking advantage of weightlessness to produce electronic crystals of a purity and uniformity that is impossible to accomplish in the gravity of Earth.

"I think we're doing very well, although there will always be casualties in terms of objectives," said Spacelab mission manager Joe Cremin.

Astronaut Dr. Norman Thagard took charge of cleaning the cages of the 24 rats and two squirrel monkeys. He and Loderwijk van den Berg donned surgical gowns and masks and attacked the dirty cages with a vacuum cleaner and garbage bags.

"It's really a mess when you pull the old food canisters out," said Thagard. He reported that food and rat droppings were flooding into the cabin. The vacuum cleaner was used to suck up the debris and clean the air, but pilot Bob Gregory reported that some animal matter still floated up into the cockpit.

"Everything comes forward and we'll see it up here in the cockpit in 20 to 30 minutes," Gregory told Mission Control. "It wasn't food that came out. That's our problem."

The astronauts expressed health concerns about animal feces floating in the cabin, but a physician on the ground said the crew was kept safe by wearing surgical masks for the half hour it takes for filters to clean up the air.

Police facing torture charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Five policemen pleaded innocent Thursday to charges in connection with the alleged beating and stun gun torture of drug suspects in a Queens precinct.

Among those indicted was a lieutenant assigned to supervise other officers' conduct.

The allegations of brutality in the 106th Precinct surfaced last week and have forced a high-level shakeup in the city's Police Department.

The indictment charged Lt. Steven Cheswick, integrity control officer of the 106th Precinct, and four other officers with beating four drug suspects. All but Cheswick also were accused of prodding suspects with an electric stun gun.

The incidents took place on a street, in a police car and in one of the victim's homes, and the electric shocks were administered in the stationhouse, according to the indictment.

District Attorney John Santucci said the grand jury returned the indictments despite the refusal of the officers' colleagues to testify.

"I am not satisfied that we have done everything . . . to get to the root of these cases," Santucci said. "But I was unable under the current law to call officers before the grand jury to compel testimony without giving immunity from prosecution."

At the officers' arraignment, Judge John Gallagher dismissed one of two conspiracy counts and then released all five, who pleaded innocent, without bail.

Dotson's accuser 'tried to forget'

JAFFREY, N.H. (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb, who recanted a rape accusation that kept Gary Dotson in prison for six years, said Thursday she rarely thought of him after his conviction and even forgot his name.

"I probably thought of him once every couple of months and then blacked it out of my mind," she said.

Dotson, convicted of raping Mrs. Webb when she was a teen-ager, went fishing Thursday, one day after he was released on bond from an Illinois prison. His mother posted $10,000 cash for the $100,000 bond.

Mrs. Webb, whose testimony helped convict Dotson in 1979, said she is willing to testify at any legal proceeding in an effort to atone for her lie.

"I was obviously a good liar, and it was embarrassing to have to get up in front of adults in the courtroom and tell it all" as a 16-year-old who made up the rape story because she feared she was pregnant after having sex with a boyfriend, she said at a news conference in Pilgrim Baptist Church.

Mrs. Webb, a 23-year-old mother of two, said that although an Illinois circuit judge did not believe her recanted story and returned Dotson to jail on April 11, her original testimony was riddled with discrepancies.

Mrs. Webb, a born-again Christian, said she was "happy, elated that Gary Dotson is out of prison and can walk the streets like a free man."

Falwell criticizes trip to Bitburg's cemetery

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Evangelist Jerry Falwell on Thursday added his voice to those criticizing President Reagan's planned trip to a West German military cemetery where the dead include members of the Nazi SS.

". . . While (Reagan) certainly is attempting to build bridges between the United States and Germany, I feel it was an affront to the Jewish people in this country and to many veterans of World War II," Falwell said at a news conference at T.F. Green State Airport.

"Again, I know it wasn't his intention, but I came out opposing him, challenging him and asking him to please reconsider," he added. "I just felt it was a bad decision from the beginning."

Falwell, president of the conservative lobbying group Moral Majority, had been in Providence to speak at an "Old-Time Gospel" brunch, at which he called abortion "a holocaust of the unborn."

Falwell's stop in Rhode Island was part of a 280-city tour to raise money for Liberty University.

During the news conference, Falwell said he doubts attempts by Ted Turner and other conservatives to purchase the CBS network will be successful.

He added, however, "I think the goal is being accomplished. We're getting the attention of the media moguls . . . (in an) attempt to balance reporting."

Muslims get loan

CHICAGO (AP) — Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan claims he has been granted an interest-free $5 million loan from Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, according to reports published Thursday.

The State Department said it has not confirmed the transaction, but that there probably are no restrictions against such an arrangement.

Valve may be illness source

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An illegal valve that could have allowed the mixing of pasteurized milk with raw milk may have led to the nation's largest salmonella outbreak, Illinois' top public health official said Thursday.

"At this point, it doesn't appear there's any more likely cause than that," said Dr. Bernard Turnock, acting director of the state Public Health Department. But he cautioned that tests are still being conducted and "none of the other possibilities can be discounted at this point."

As of Thursday, 14,828 cases of salmonella food poisoning had been reported in six states since March, 13,339 of them confirmed.

Burger halts Turner execution

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Willie Lloyd Turner's scheduled execution for murder and robbery was called off Thursday when Chief Justice Warren Burger refused to dissolve a stay, only hours before Turner was to die in the electric chair.

No new date for the execution was set.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had stayed the 9 p.m. MDT execution on Monday, because Turner has an appeal pending before the Supreme Court. Burger informed the state he would not lift the lower court's order, said David Hathcock, a spokesman for the attorney general.

Ontario leader loses majority

TORONTO (AP) — Premier Frank Miller, whose Progressive Conservative Party has governed Ontario for 41 years, barely won re-election Thursday but lost his majority in the provincial Parliament.

The Tories won just 52 seats in the 125-seat legislature of Canada's largest province — 20 fewer than they held before the election. The Liberals won 48 seats and the Socialist New Democrats won 25.

One of the best-known Liberal candidates, former major league baseball pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, was defeated in a district in Windsor, across the border from Detroit.

Conservatives lose in voting

LONDON (AP) — The centrist alliance of the Liberal and Social Democratic parties scored gains at the expense of the governing Conservatives as results began arriving from elections Thursday for county councils in England and Wales.

The voting was considered the biggest electoral test for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government since she won a second term in June 1983.

Storms dampen eastern states

By The Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms rumbled across the eastern United States on Thursday, spawning a tornado in northwestern Florida.

Cloudy skies and intermittent showers reached from the central Gulf coast through Tennessee and the Carolinas to southern New England, where communities have been facing the worst dry spell in 20 years.

In Florida, a twister touched down about five miles west of Fort Walton Beach, the National Weather Service said. There was no report of any damage. A tornado watch was issued through 7 p.m. MDT for portions of southern and central Alabama, west-central Georgia and northwestern Florida.

Comatose woman bore bruise

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Martha "Sunny" von Bulow had a bruise on her face when she was admitted to a hospital in an irreversible coma, a doctor testified Thursday in her husband's retrial on charges he twice tried to kill her with insulin injections.

Prosecutors say the bruise supports the contention that Mrs. von Bulow struggled with an assailant before she fell into a coma. Lawyers for her husband, Claus von Bulow, say she caused the coma by abusing drugs, alcohol and sweets.

Ice may have torn off engine

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A jetliner that lost an engine over the New Mexico desert last month showed no sign of mechanical problems, and the engine may have been hit by a chunk of ice, federal officials said Thursday.

"There was no fault in the aircraft that could have permitted the engine just to fall off," said Al Crawford, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator.

The evaluation of the engine revealed no mechanical problem with it or the aircraft, said Don Llorente, acting chief of the Los Angeles field office of the NTSB. But the engine showed "evidence of foreign object damage," he said.

Agent tells of 'dangle' ploy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A retired FBI agent testified Thursday he used a Soviet woman in a "dangle" operation, an attempt to convince Russian officials he was available for espionage work.

John Hunt, under cross-examination at the espionage trial of Svetlana and Nikolay Ogorodnikov, admitted he knew the term "dangle" meant "to make a person appear that he was malleable for espionage work."

New look at adult magazines examines effects on children

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has approved a new version of a widely criticized study that will try to determine whether Playboy, Penthouse and Hustler magazines influence sexual exploitation of children and delinquency.

The scaled-down research project, financed by the department but conducted by American University here, will review 660 issues of the publications and analyze such content as "the use of children in fairy tale sex scenarios ...."

"Sexual depiction of children with fairy tale characters and themes such as Santa Claus, Dorothy and the Wizard of Oz, Snow White, etc." will be "of special significance in this final analysis," the new project design said.

Other "issues of particular concern" include "children involved sexually with 'influential' adults (member of government, police officer, doctor, teacher, counselor, military personnel, member of the clergy, etc.)," according to the new research document.

The 22-month study, which began in December 1983, will now analyze explicit pictures and cartoons portraying children. If time allows and department approval is given, the study also will analyze advice columns and letters to the editor in the three adult magazines.

The maximum approved cost is $734,371, compared with $798,531 for the original proposal, which would have included reviews of general news magazines and other literature.

of about 13 hours was spent in the jury room.

"I feel very satisfied that the family has been vindicated, especially some of the outrageous allegations concerning the daughters," Haws said.

The victim's father said he felt good about the first-degree murder conviction, "but I still don't understand why the charges were dropped."

Becker dismissed the charges of kidnapping and grand theft after the prosecution rested its case. Stoker argued that Jerome County had no jurisdiction in those cases because the acts didn't happen there.

The kidnapping and grand theft charges stemmed from Arbaugh's allegations that Charboneau abducted her and stole her car after she finished work June 21.

Haws said every trial has ebbs and flows. When the two charges were dropped, "at that point I was very, very low," Haws said.

Arbaugh's parents said they hope for a sentence that will ensure Charboneau would not be free for a long time. "I'd be afraid if he got out again," said Jim Arbaugh.

"I don't ever want to see him on the streets," Mrs. Arbaugh said.

Jim Arbaugh said the verdict wouldn't end the nightmare the family has been living since July 1. "It'll never be over — never," he said.

"remove" the victims and two other Utah County residents.

Lafferty, who tried to hang himself in his Utah County Jail cell in December, had undergone a number of psychiatric evaluations prior to Bullock's declaring him competent to stand trial. Prior to the suicide attempt, Lafferty had complained of being bothered by evil spirits.

Over Watson's objections, Bullock had decided to allow defense testimony from Dr. C. Jeff Groesbeck of Utah State Hospital, but during a short recess, Lafferty indicated he wouldn't allow it.

"He told me during the break that he does not feel comfortable with the defense and that he does not want me to go through with it. I told him I think it's absolutely necessary," Johnson said.

Over a lunch break, Johnson tried again to convince Lafferty to change his mind.

The defendant's mother, Claudine Lafferty, denied the testimony of prosecution witnesses who said she had been aware of her son's plans to kill her daughter-in-law and granddaughter.

As she left the stand and passed her son, Mrs. Lafferty was seen to mouth the words, "I love you."

After the prosecution had rested Thursday morning, Johnson filed a motion for a mistrial, saying Watson's opening statement was needlessly gruesome and covered ground not supported by testimony.

Bullock denied the motion.

swiftly, when Dole won, 79-17, adoption of a non-binding amendment urging enactment of a minimum tax on profitable corporations and wealthy individuals. Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said, "This is not a tax increase," and said money raised through such a tax would be used only to reduce individual tax rates.

The result would be no reduction in the deficit, and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., complained that made it a "meaningless addendum" to the Republican budget originally designed to reduce red ink by $295 billion over three years. Reagan has said he opposes any tax increase this year.

Before adjourning for the night, the Senate began debate on an amendment to restore $900 million in proposed Medicaid cuts over three years, eliminating a proposed cap that states had found objectionable. Medicare cuts would be reduced by $1.7 billion over three years, scaling back on proposed increases to beneficiaries but retaining a proposed freeze on payments to doctors and hospitals. Despite the restorations, the two programs would be cut by a total of $17.5 billion under the proposal, expected to come to a vote today.

In addition, the GOP leadership has reached an "understanding" with dissident Republicans for a partial restoration of proposed cuts in postal subsidies to small newspapers, and has made progress toward a compromise to add back some of the funds proposed cut from health and education.

In voting for what Hatfield termed a "historic" change in defense, the Senate spurned a trans-Atlantic lobbying campaign by the traveling president. And Dole apparently considered seeking to reverse the vote, only to drop the idea because he noted it was "five minutes after midnight in Bonn, too late for calls to come over."

Grassley and other advocates of the provision said it would have no impact on national security, but was aimed at rooting out waste and inefficiency at the Pentagon.

He also accused Weinberger of practicing "political blackmail" by suggesting to senators that bases in their home states might be closed if the administration didn't get all the funding it wanted. Dole denied that on Weinberger's behalf, saying the defense chief "didn't threaten to close their bases."

health-affecting contaminants now found in tap water.

Also cleared for floor action by the Republican-controlled Senate committee was a bill that would continue federal assistance for state and local sewer and waste-treatment projects through 1991.

The proposal, which is stirring political problems because of a revised allocation formula, would provide $18 billion in grants and loans over the next nine years — three times what was sought by the administration, which wants to abolish the entire program by 1990.

Under that measure, providing $2.4 billion for sewers and wastewater treatment facilities in fiscal 1986, Idaho would receive $17.1 million, compared with $11.7 million under the existing formula.

The legislation would also continue the requirement that businesses depositing waste into the nation's waterways secure discharge permits every five years. A coalition of business, labor and farm groups had been pushing for 10-year terms.

The bill also states that when permits are reissued, their anti-pollution standards cannot be weakened. However, the legislation puts off for a year, until July 1988, the date for industries to comply with discharge standards still being formulated by EPA.

Senators and representatives voiced dissatisfaction with the pace of such regulatory action by EPA, which has issued standards for only 24 contaminants since the original Safe Drinking Water Act was enacted in 1972.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House panel, noted that 22 of the regulated substances date back to a list of hazardous substances prepared by the U.S. Public Health Service in 1962.

The legislation would require EPA to write standards on 14 substances it first talked about regulating in 1982 and another 50 that have been under consideration since 1983.

Both the Senate and House bills would also require drinking water purification facilities to begin monitoring water for hundreds of contaminants not mentioned in the legislation or currently under regulation.

The House subcommittee acted against the express wishes of EPA Administrator Lee Thomas, who said forcing the agency to write regulations would produce "unwarranted rigidity."

"Mandated lists reduce our ability to adjust priorities within the agency in response to new and emerging problems," Thomas wrote in a letter to Waxman.

Weightlessness effects observed

Spacelab experiment repair brings joy to scientist's face

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a shout of joy and the ring of laughter, Spacelab 3 scientist Taylor Wang announced from orbit Thursday that he had repaired an experiment he has been waiting for nine years to operate in space.

"It's working, it's working," Wang announced after power surged to an instrument called the Drop Dynamics Module.

"When it came on, you've never seen such joy on anyone's face," said astronaut Don Lind, a Spacelab crewmate.

Wang had worked feverishly for more than two days to repair the science instrument, a device which he helped develop. Its purpose is to study the effects of weightlessness on drops of fluid and the results could lead to improvements in metallurgical and chemical industrial processes.

The repair was particularly good news for the science team of Challenger's spacelab mission. Three experiments already had malfunctioned and are beyond repair aboard the science module.

Earlier, the astronauts tidied up the cages of their space menagerie of monkeys and rats, and reported that a sickly monkey seemed to be feeling better.

Scientists said the restoration of Wang's experiment means that data is being gathered now from 12 instruments, assuring Spacelab 3 has become a scientific success.

They were particularly pleased with two crystal-growing devices. The furnace-like equipment is taking advantage of weightlessness to produce electronic crystals of a purity and uniformity that is impossible to accomplish in the gravity of Earth.

"I think we're doing very well, although there will always be casualties in terms of objectives," said Spacelab mission manager Joe Cremin.

Astronaut Dr. Norman Thagard took charge of cleaning the cages of the 24 rats and two squirrel monkeys. He and Lodewijk van den Berg donned surgical gowns and masks and attacked the dirty cages with a vacuum cleaner and garbage bags.

"It's really a mess when you pull the old food canisters out," said Thagard. He reported that food and rat droppings were flooding into the cabin. The vacuum cleaner was used to suck up the debris and clean the air, but pilot Bob Gregory reported that some animal matter still floated up into the cockpit.

"Everything comes forward and we'll see it up here in the cockpit in 20 to 30 minutes," Gregory told Mission Control. "It wasn't food that came out. That's our problem."

The astronauts expressed health concerns about animal feces floating in the cabin, but a physician on the ground said the crew was kept safe by wearing surgical masks for the half hour it takes for filters to clean up the air.

Police facing torture charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Five policemen pleaded innocent Thursday to charges in connection with the alleged beating and stun gun torture of drug suspects in a Queens precinct.

Among those indicted was a lieutenant assigned to supervise other officers' conduct.

The allegations of brutality in the 106th Precinct surfaced last week and have forced a high-level shakeup in the city's Police Department.

The indictment charged Lt. Steven Cheswick, integrity control officer of the 106th Precinct, and four other officers with beating four drug suspects. All but Cheswick also were accused of prodding suspects with an electric stun gun.

The incidents took place on a street, in a police car and in one of the victim's homes, and the electric shocks were administered in the stationhouse, according to the indictment.

District Attorney John Santucci said the grand jury returned the indictments despite the refusal of the officers' colleagues to testify.

"I am not satisfied that we have done everything . . . to get to the root of these cases," Santucci said. "But I was unable under the current law to call officers before the grand jury to compel testimony without giving immunity from prosecution."

At the officers' arraignment, Judge John Gallagher dismissed one of two conspiracy counts and then released all five, who pleaded innocent, without bail.

Dotson's accuser 'tried to forget'

JAFFREY, N.H. (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb, who recanted a rape accusation that kept Gary Dotson in prison for six years, said Thursday she rarely thought of him after his conviction and even forgot his name.

"I probably thought of him once every couple of months and then blacked it out of my mind," she said.

Dotson, convicted of raping Mrs. Webb when she was a teen-ager, went fishing Thursday, one day after he was released on bond from an Illinois prison. His mother posted $10,000 cash for the $100,000 bond.

Mrs. Webb, whose testimony helped convict Dotson in 1979, said she is willing to testify at any legal proceeding in an effort to atone for her lie.

"I was obviously a good liar, and it was embarrassing to have to get up in front of adults in the courtroom and tell it all" as a 16-year-old who made up the rape story because she feared she was pregnant after having sex with a boyfriend, she said at a news conference in Pilgrim Baptist Church.

Mrs. Webb, a 23-year-old mother of two, said that although an Illinois circuit judge did not believe her recanted story and returned Dotson to jail on April 11, her original testimony was riddled with discrepancies.

Mrs. Webb, a born-again Christian, said she was "happy, elated that Gary Dotson is out of prison and can walk the streets like a free man."

Falwell criticizes trip to Bitburg's cemetery

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Evangelist Jerry Falwell on Thursday added his voice to those criticizing President Reagan's planned trip to a West German military cemetery where the dead include members of the Nazi SS.

". . . While (Reagan) certainly is attempting to build bridges between the United States and Germany, I feel it was an affront to the Jewish people in this country and to many veterans of World War II," Falwell said at a news conference at T.F. Green State Airport.

"Again, I know it wasn't his intention, but I came out opposing him, challenging him and asking him to please reconsider," he added. "I just felt it was a bad decision from the beginning."

Falwell, president of the conservative lobbying group Moral Majority, had been in Providence to speak at an "Old-Time Gospel" brunch, at which he called abortion "a holocaust of the unborn."

Falwell's stop in Rhode Island was part of a 280-city tour to raise money for Liberty University.

During the news conference, Falwell said he doubts attempts by Ted Turner and other conservatives to purchase the CBS network will be successful.

He added, however, "I think the goal is being accomplished. We're getting the attention of the media moguls . . . (in an) attempt to balance reporting."

Muslims get loan

CHICAGO (AP) — Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan claims he has been granted an interest-free $5 million loan from Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, according to reports published Thursday.

The State Department said it has not confirmed the transaction, but that there probably are no restrictions against such an arrangement.

Targeting apartheid will assist change

In South Africa the confrontation over apartheid sharpens, and in the United States a feeling grows that Americans are doing too little for justice in South Africa and may even be comforting injustice.

This is what is behind the rising impatience with the Reagan administration's policy of "constructive engagement" and, specifically, the countering campaign to legislate economic sanctions against South Africa. What is the right thing to do?

Above all else, the United States must speak in its true voice. Too often constructive engagement has amounted to a formula for pulling punches and making excuses for apartheid.

While paying lip service to black dignity, American policy has often conveyed a sense that blacks are too impatient, and that somehow whites are justified in resisting the black majority's demands.

The burden should not be on blacks to show they deserve the rights they claim, but on whites to stop denying equal rights to all South Africans.

Strong governments like the one in Pretoria bend chiefly to inexorable internal demands, which are mounting.

In current circumstances, blacks are setting the pace of protest, and foreigners can do little to spare them the harsh immediate consequences (death, arrest, firing).

But outsiders can assert, constantly and sharply, the standards South Africa ought to meet in response. Apartheid is an outrage, and neither whites nor blacks should be allowed to think the United States believes otherwise.

Sanctions express outrage, but that is at once their principal value and their principal deficiency.

Easy slogans to the effect that Western investment and trade "finance apartheid" conceal the hard truth that sanctions would likely slow the engine of change that is the South African economy (or put firms in the hands of foreigners untroubled by apartheid), expose black job-holders to direct loss, push white South Africa further toward an embattled self-reliance and punish South Africa's dependent black neighbors.

The fallback argument, that sanctions, though of dubious economic effect, would have a considerable political shock value, stops working as sanctions move from the threatened to the real.

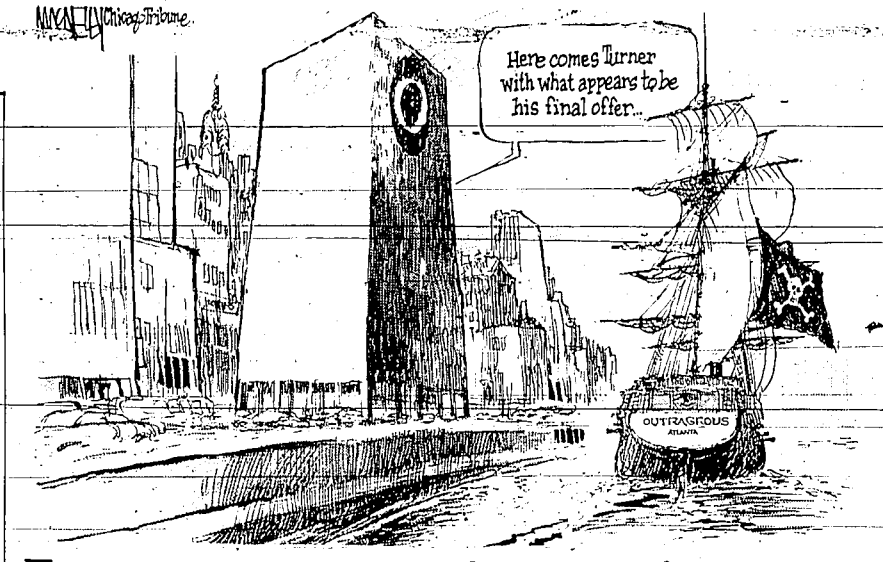

Americans should not let themselves be distracted by a debate on this second-order issue. The first order needs an unblurred focus: the steps whites should promptly undertake to end apartheid.

The recourse to violence must go. The indecencies of discrimination must go. The pass laws and the group areas act, instruments for white control of black labor, must go. The homelands structure, robbing blacks of their common South African nationality, must go. The denial of black political rights must go.

In short, the alternative to sanctions need not be "constructive engagement," or doing nothing. It is targeting apartheid.

Let the administration become as practiced in promoting the tasks of dismantling this odious system as it is in arguing against sanctions, and, we think, two things will happen: South Africans, who care deeply for foreign approval, will pay more attention, and the challenge to American policy at home will recede.

Foes may welcome fairness doctrine

Richard Labunski

At the time that Sen. Jesse Helms and Ted Turner are trying to take over CBS and become "Dan Rather's boss," broadcasters are dizzy with excitement over the chance to kill a regulatory policy that they have despised for 25 years.

The irony is that if Helms and Turner are successful, broadcasters may be grateful that the fairness doctrine is still around.

Outlined by the Federal Communications Commission in a 1949 report, then enacted by Congress 10 years later, the fairness doctrine requires broadcasters to devote a reasonable amount of their programming to "controversial issues of public importance," and when doing so to present "contrasting points of view."

Broadcasters argue that the FCC's authority to punish them for non-compliance violates their First Amendment rights and discourages coverage of important issues. In their view there is no longer a scarcity of outlets, the original reason for regulation, and the government has no right to tell them what they must include or leave out of their programs.

But a unanimous U.S. Supreme Court in the Red Lion case in 1969 upheld the fairness doctrine and said that, because of the unique nature of broadcasting, the government could require broadcasters to provide access for differing viewpoints.

For the first time in its four-year history the Reagan FCC has found a violation of the fairness doctrine: when a New York television station aired editorials advocating the continued construction of a nuclear-power plant.

A group opposed to the construction argued that the station had aired only one side of the issue, and asked it to correct the "programming imbalance," which the station refused to do. While clearly uncomfortable with having to uphold the despised fairness doctrine, the FCC voted 4-1 that it had been violated.

The TV station and other broadcasters are hoping that this case will at long last provide the vehicle for overturning Red Lion. With a much different Supreme Court today to hear the case, the station's lawyer proclaimed that it is time for the courts to "revisit this anachronism."

Imagine what would happen if there were a hostile takeover of CBS by a right-wing group determined to provide its version of the world, and the fairness doctrine had been repealed. On what grounds would those holding different views gain access to their broadcasting facilities?

Assume that the takeover was successful and that there was a mass resignation of CBS news personnel who would find working for Jesse Helms distasteful. They were replaced by news people who more closely shared his views.

CBS owns WCBS-TV in New York. If the post-takeover news department wanted to provide coverage to those opposing abortion, while never allowing a pro-abortion spokesperson on the air, there would be nothing that anyone could do about it. The FCC, with the fairness doctrine repealed, could not order the station to air both sides of the issue.

Broadcasters also are working hard to repeal the "comparative renewal" process. If they succeed, station licenses, in effect, would be granted in perpetuity. The FCC would have a tough time then taking away a station's license at the end of the five-year license period.

While clearly there are many broadcasting outlets and much diversity, there is only one CBS channel in New York. If the Helms-Turner group acquired exclusive use of the channel, the word scarcity would take on new meaning.

It is true that broadcasters and the FCC receive many fairness-doctrine complaints. But only a fraction ever result in sanctions. The fact that the current FCC has sustained only one complaint in four years suggests that the fairness doctrine does not pose a very serious threat.

If CBS or some other broadcasting company is grabbed in a takeover by ideologues determined to bring us "good" news, the resulting programs could hardly be called journalism. Whatever complaints we now have about news coverage, broadcast journalists are trying to inform and be fair. They have no ideological stake in how their stories come out.

Broadcasters ought to reconsider their longtime opposition to the fairness doctrine. If the Helms-Turner group and those like them take over, the public and many broadcasters may find themselves complaining about "unfair" news coverage. But with the fairness doctrine repealed, they would have little choice but to watch Dan Rather's successor thank God for the First Amendment.

Let the farmers sink or swim

Wanted: Third generation welfare farmer seeks third-generation, unwed welfare mother for meaningful relationship to share our philosophy, intellect and our dependency upon and our appreciation for the government dole to live high on the hog at the taxpayer's expense. Must be willing to relocate since my welfare check is bigger than yours.

To the Congress:

Forgive me and my sardonic sense of humor but you must admit that we, the farmers of America, are as surely and perpetually on the welfare roll as the third generation unskilled, uneducated, unwed welfare mothers that most farmers vehemently deery, unless you, individually and collectively, stand up to be counted.

Being among the best informed, most experienced, best educated individuals in the nation, surely you possess enough common sense to realize that neither you nor the nation have the responsibility of keeping every farmer in business forever, no matter how much it costs.

I admonish you to release us, as you have the airlines and the trucking industry, to sink or swim on the basis of our own merit. No business, farming or otherwise, is entitled to the guarantee of a profit (and perpetuity) regardless of the level of management, degree of indebtedness or location (productivity of the land).

If you gradually withdraw the artificial stimulus of subsidies, props and loan guarantees you will see a significant number of corporate farms and marginal small farms disappear and a lot of marginal land go out of production and that is the only way we can ever hope to dissipate our present crop surpluses to bring production in line with demand and generate a healthy farm economy. We simply have too many farmers (many of them marginal) farming too much land (much of it marginal) producing more farm commodities than we can consume or export.

You, and you alone, have the power (and the duty) to rectify this horrendous situation that has come about as the result of fifty years of misguided benevalence.

Think it over!

Visiting Leningrad cemetery would have built some bridges

Ellen Goodman

LENINGRAD — It is a raw April day and the war is all around.

I have driven a half hour out of the city into a landscape painted from a monochromatic palette of gray and beige.

To my left, a tall grove of white birch trees hovers over lines of gray tombstones. In front of me, huge rectangular mounds of earth stretch out in rows, only identified by a discreet granite marker with a number: 1942, 1943. In each mound is buried 10,000 people.

In all, there are 460,000 Soviet dead in this vast, haunting place, the Piskarovskoye Memorial Cemetery. They are men and women and children killed during the Nazis' 900-day seige of Leningrad, killed during what the Soviets call The Great Patriotic War. As my guide tells me in morbid one-upsmanship, there are more Russians buried in this one place than the total number of Americans lost in the war.

For the past week, I have watched this country preparing to celebrate May 9, the 40th anniversary of victory. It is not being commemorated coolly as some distant historic event here, but emotionally, with all the immediacy of a recent and nearly fatal wound. Every night, on television, there is another war movie. Every morning, the newspapers carry another story: Today it is the tale of a woman who lost nine sons.

The theme of war is as somber and relentless as the Russian music broadcast from the loudspeaker over the cemetery. It is so heavy, so constant, that I am tempted to dismiss the war as a relic resuscitated for holidays, waved in front of the people for current needs rather than past. The Great Patriotic War, after all, forged a nation out of its diverse nationalities. The war still impresses Soviets with their vulnerable place on the European map. The war still subliminally persuades many that sacrifices have to be made for defense.

But here, before me, is another reality. A small sample of death. Twenty million Soviet people died — one out of every four citizens. The figure translates into spouses, parents, and now grandparents. Of all the men born in 1922 and sent to the front, only three percent survived. The figure translates into a generation of 20-year-old widows, now 60-year-old widows.

Among the older people, these memories are indeed vivid. Just this morning, Vasili Kulik Emezova, a warm, engaging Leningrad grandmother who lived through the seige, talked to me in the rhythmic cadences of a practiced storyteller about the winter of 1942.

For seven months, she remembers, people lived on a ration of 125 grams of bread a day. Young girls brought food rations to people too weak to get their own. Some of these girls brought back the live babies they found in the arms of their dead parents.

The middle-aged Soviets, postwar born, talk about what it was like to grow up with shortages of everything, especially fathers. Even the teen-agers who confess — rolling their eyes to the heavens — that they are turned off by war movies and have overdosed on this spring's portion of history pay their respects. As a 17-year-old high school student said: "I don't like to talk about it with my grandparents. But it's important to remember. To forget means to forgive."

It's an article of faith with the Soviet people that Americans don't really understand war because it hasn't touched American soil for so long. Even a young Jewish scientist and refusenik whose own parents fought on the front echoed the common refrain. "Americans do not understand what Russia went through in the war."

It is also a successful prop of propaganda that convinces the Soviet people that the experience of war has made them more diligent in pursuit of peace. As a professional America-watcher at the USA Institute in Moscow tells me pointedly, "One of the main dangers in the world is that you lack firsthand experience with war." Ironically, this man was born in 1947.

In the last week, Arthur Hartman, the U.S. Ambassador to the Soviet Union, tried to counter some of this feeling. In a letter published here to commemorate the meeting of Soviet and American soldiers on the Elbe, he wrote: "Our sacrifices remain as real and as vivid to us as those of the Soviet Union are to its people. We hold them no less sacred. And we learned no less from them."

But his message was erased by reports of Reagan's plan to visit Bitburg. In or out of government, the Soviets have found that trip to lay a wreath in a Nazi cemetery incredible, insensitive, even sacrilegious.

Walking down the pathway between these common graves, counting by the tens, the tens of thousands, I am struck by how far the two powers have traveled from the Elbe, from the time when war made us allies. What a cemetery this would have been for a presidential visit — a place to side with victims, not aggressors. It's the victims who inhabit these grounds now, hundreds of thousands of them.

And on this damp and dismal day, at the nadir of relations between my country and this one, those great humps of common graves seem less like a memorial to the distant past and more like a warning about the future.

Younger Eisenhower brother Milton succumbs at age of 85

BALTIMORE (AP) — Milton S. Eisenhower, a diplomat, civil servant and educator who was often hailed by his brother Ike as "the bright one in the family," died Thursday at Johns Hopkins Hospital. He was 85.

Eisenhower had been in and out of the hospital for several months with a variety of ailments, and had been hospitalized for five days before his death, said Sue Hart, a spokeswoman for the hospital.

"I think I would rather take Milton's views than those of any one else," Dwight Eisenhower said while he was president. "He's a unique brother. He's got the respect of all the older ones."

The youngest of seven Eisenhower brothers, Milton Eisenhower began a long career of government service in the Agriculture Department in 1926.

During World War II, he directed the relocation of Japanese-Americans from the West Coast, a policy he later regretted as an "inhuman mistake," and the resettlement of refugees in North Africa after the Allied invasion in 1942.

He helped President Harry Truman reorganize the Agriculture Department, negotiated for President John Kennedy with Fidel Castro to swap 500 tractors for 1,214 prisoners taken in the Bay of Pigs invasion, and President Lyndon Johnson tapped him to chair a commission to study the causes of violence in the United States in 1968.

During the Eisenhower administration, Milton Eisenhower undertook a 20,000-mile fact-finding tour of 10 Latin American nations as the president's personal representative.

MILTON EISENHOWER
'A unique brother'

He served as a sounding board for President Eisenhower, and he called it "a perfect relationship."

"I didn't work for him at the White House," Eisenhower said in an interview published last September by The Evening Sun of Baltimore. "I asked the right questions for him to clarify his own thinking. If there was some evidence that he hadn't known about, I would bring it up."

Milton Stover Eisenhower was born Sept. 15, 1899, in Abilene, Kan. A bout of scarlet fever at age 4 left his eyes weak and his frame less rugged than his athletic brother Dwight, and he turned to scholarly pursuits.

In 1926, Kansas State College president William M. Jardine was named Secretary of Agriculture by President Calvin Coolidge, and Eisenhower joined him as his assistant.

He left the federal government in 1943 to become president of Kansas State University, but he served Truman for six weeks to reorganize the Agriculture Department for peacetime activities.

He was named president of Penn State University in 1950 and served twice as president of Johns Hopkins University, in 1956-67 and again in 1971-72.

When Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. were assassinated in 1968, Johnson turned to Eisenhower to chair the Commission on Causes and Prevention of Violence. The commission's report went to President Richard Nixon, but Eisenhower said he believed Nixon ignored the findings.

For Nixon, Eisenhower chaired a commission which studied the effectiveness of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty.

In 1974, he published "The President is Calling," an assessment of the eight presidents he knew well.

Apartheid protests spark 250 arrests

By The Associated Press

More than 250 people were arrested in anti-apartheid protests on California and Iowa campuses Thursday, while six Boston labor union officials surrendered to police after occupying an office where South African gold coins were sold.

In the nation's capital, Georgetown University students presented trustees a bedsheet banner urging "Divest Now," and 27 Massachusetts students were freed Thursday from police lock-ups after a sit-in — all part of continuing efforts to end college investment in companies doing business in South Africa.

"Each day that investment continues is a black spot on the university," said Matthew Shakespeare, 19, one of the arrested students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Twenty-seven students, who were arrested after refusing to leave the office of campus Treasurer Robert Brand, were released Thursday after pleading innocent to trespassing charges. Six other students face arraignment next week.

At Harvard University, about 200 students barricaded the door of a room where a South African diplomat was speaking Thursday until a phalanx of campus police led him through the chanting crowd.

Abe Hoopenstein, consul-general of the South African Consulate in New Yorkr was escorted to an unmarked car about an hour after he was scheduled to leave, said Marjorie Heffron of the Harvard News Office. There were no arrests.

Hoopenstein, who was at Harvard to participate in a panel discussion on apartheid on Wednesday night, had been asked to a private reception at noon Thursday by the Conservative Club, she said.

Students gathered at Lowell House dormitory, surrounding the meeting room and barricading the door, pledging to keep Hoopenstein inside until midnight.

"We want to demonstrate the parallel with black South Africans who are imprisoned by officials, to give him a taste of what it is like," junior Sarah Jane Holcombe said by telephone interview from the dormitory.

Police arrested 112 demonstrators in Berkeley, Calif. All were cited for blocking public access and then released.

"I think that the reverberations of these demonstrations are being heard around the world," black activist Angela Davis, who teaches at San Francisco State University, told 350 people at a sunrise rally Thursday at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

Nuke tested again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The fifth announced nuclear weapons test at the Nevada Test Site in seven weeks was detonated Thursday beneath the desert 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, triggering ground motion that registered 5.5 on the Richter scale.

"Everything went very smoothly," Energy Department spokesman Jim Boyer said from a two-story concrete control building 30 miles from ground zero.

South Africa sanctions sought by House panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrat-controlled House Foreign Affairs Committee voted 29-6 on Thursday to impose new economic sanctions against South Africa and its system of racial apartheid.

The legislation — opposed by the Reagan administration — would prohibit new U.S. investment and loans in South Africa.

It would also suspend the sale of American computers to South Africa and shut off imports to the United States of an estimated $600 million in South African gold coins called Krugerrands.

All six "no" votes came from Republicans who argued that rather than encourage improved race relations in South Africa, the sanctions would worsen conditions for the black majority there.

A watered-down Republican version condemning apartheid and setting up a comission to investigate conditions in South Africa was rejected 19-4.

The Democratic measure now goes to the House floor where speedy consideration is likely, possibly before the end of May.

Similar legislation is pending in the Republican-controlled Senate which is likely to debate the issue by midsummer.

The United States has previously cut off military sales to South Africa; and the country is ineligible for loans from the Export-Import Bank.

But the recent violence and increasing racial tensions in South Africa have made it more likely that Congress will enact tougher measures this year.

Honduras pact eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top military officer of Honduras said Thursday his government and the Reagan administration are working on a joint declaration under which the United States would pledge assistance to Honduras in the event of an armed attack against that country.

Efraim Gonzalez, the chairman of the Honduran joint chiefs of staff, told a news conference the declaration would provide U.S. "security guarantees" for Honduras if there is an attack of a "communist nature."

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, ruled out a special treaty for Honduras but said the administration is considering a joint statement reaffirming existing U.S. commitments to Honduras.

Honduras has been seeking a separate security arrangement with the United States because of its strained relationship with its southern neighbor, Nicaragua, which has a much larger armed force than Honduras.

The tension between the two countries stems partly from the presence in southern Honduras of thousands of Nicaraguan Contras who have been using that country as a launching pad for attacks against the Sandinista government.

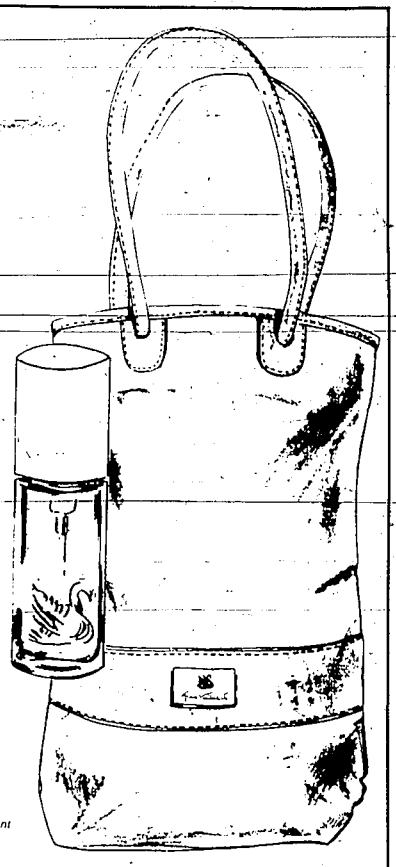

Honduran Foreign Minister Edgardo Paz Barnica, who also spoke at the news conference, blamed Nicaragua for repeated border incidents and said that the Sandinistas have infiltrated agents into Honduras for the purpose of destabilizing the country's pro-U.S. government.

Swan Falls Dam pact signed

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. and the state Land Board have signed an agreement that the utility says opens the way for spillway repairs at Swan Falls Dam.

The agreement signed on Thursday lifts a 90-day limit on Idaho Power's use of submerged state lands for access to the repair site at the southwestern Idaho dam.

Under the contract, Idaho Power will have use of the lands for access until 30 days after the state comes up with new rules governing submerged lands.

Idaho Power Vice President Logan Lanham said the 90-day limit blocked repairs because the company was reluctant to let contracts for work that might be interrupted by water conditions or other unforseeable constraints.

Parole board post still vacant

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho Commission on Pardons and Paroles vacancy won't be filled for at least a week, the chairman of the state Board of Correction says.

The board on Thursday interviewed seven people for the post vacated during the winter when the Idaho Senate refused to confirm the reappointment of Ellie Kiser.

The refusal came after Senate President Pro Tem James Risch charged Mrs. Kiser paroled dangerous inmates, but supporters of the Boise woman said lawmakers didn't take a balanced look at the facts of parole cases.

"I think if we do our job and pick the right person, we can let the Legislature worry about its own decisions," Board of Correction Chairman Robert Anderson said Thursday.

Inmates to see fees increase

BOISE (AP) — Starting July 1, inmates will pay more to stay at state work-release centers.

The Idaho Board of Correction on Thursday approved increasing payments to 25 percent of an inmate's earnings. The current rate is 20 percent.

The increase will push the average daily payment to $6, said Eugene Larson, a Corrections Department administrator. Inmates at work-release centers earn an average $4.25 an hour, he said.

Inmates from a Boise center will be moved to the Nampa facility in July so the Boise facility can undergo a month's worth of repairs, he said.

Court gives custody to father

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court says custody of a small child should be awarded to its father, because the mother violated a court decree by moving to Louisiana and taking the child with her.

The court on Thursday ruled 4-1 to sustain lower court rulings awarding Bradly S. Ford custody of a child born four years ago. Acting Justice Joseph McFadden dissented without opinion.

Both Ford, and his former wife, Sammie Jo Ford, claimed custody of the child. A magistrate, noting that the child was being breast-fed, awarded custody to the mother "for the present," upon her testimony that she planned to live in Nampa and would grant the father reasonable visitation rights.

The woman later moved to Louisiana and re-married her former husband.

Andrus hints at '86 campaign

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) — Cecil Andrus hasn't made a formal announcement yet, but he continues to give broad hints that he will run for governor next year.

Sounding a theme familiar from the 1984 campaign, Andrus lashed the Republicans and criticized Democrats for letting the GOP take the political high ground.

He then called for Democratic unity at the polls next year, and ended his speech Wednesday by saying, "I'm gonna bet on you, and I hope some of you will bet on me."

Andrus, who left the governor's position in 1977 to become President Jimmy Carter's Secretary of the Interior, called Idaho GOP state legislators an "unmanageable majority," responsible for most of the problems of the 1985 Legislature.

Governors' conference spurs security

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's Department of Law Enforcement is surveying the nation's governors, to see if any expect security problems at the National Governors' Association conference here in August.

"We're asking them if they know of any potential trouble in their areas, or if they expect any problems when they come to Boise," John Rooney, director of the [illegible] Law Enforcement, said Thursday.

Rooney's agency will be responsible for the governors' meeting, which is expected to draw many of the nation's political leaders and perhaps even President Reagan.

The task will fall mainly to the Idaho State Police. Rooney says he can't tell this far in advance how many officers will be assigned to provide security, but it will be everyone available.

"Every available officer will be assigned. We don't know how many it will be, but it will be just about everybody we can pull out," Rooney said.

His staff already has held one full-scale training meeting on the governors' conference. The Department of Law Enforcement will meet monthly until the conference nears, then at least weekly to plan security measures.

A conference on terrorism in Boise this week was billed as a session that partially designed to provide training against possible terrorism at the governors' conference.

But Rooney said his agency, when it agreed to cosponsor the session, didn't consider it as anything linked to the governors' conference. "It was strictly a basic training course on terrorism," Rooney said.

He said department officials met Monday with Larry Broadbent, Kootenai County undersheriff, for a report on the white supremacy organizations in northern Idaho, mainly the Aryan Nations at Hayden Lake.

At a news conference earlier in the day, Gov. John Evans said he didn't think there would be any security problems or terrorism incidents at the conference.

"We're planning a quiet program. I don't expect there will be any big problems," he said.

The governor said every major gathering of political figures has a few incidents. With so many national leaders gathering in Boise, "We will have to be alert," the governor said.

"We're going to have the finest conference in the nation's history," he predicted.

But in response to a question about the Aryan Nations group, Evans said, "I wish they would move someplace else."

The governor said he respects any group's right to follow its own beliefs. "They are here, and that's that," he said.

Envirosafe may close down toxic waste dump

BRUNEAU (AP) — Envirosafe Services Inc. may shut down its hazardous-waste dump near Bruneau permanently to avoid paying the $3 million it could cost to apply for a federal operating permit, a company official says.

The Environmental Protection Agency office in Seattle recently ordered Envirosafe to apply for a permanent operating permit or close the 30-acre Bruneau dump, which is at an abandoned missile base, said George Hofer, EPA hazardous waste permitting chief.

"We either have to spend a lot of money to go through the permit process or close the Bruneau site," Envirosafe Site Manager Larry Haack said Wednesday.

Haack said it could cost as much as $3 million to apply for a permit for the Bruneau dump, but only $100,000 to $300,000 to close the site.

"We haven't made a final decision yet, but we know that with the current business climate, it wouldn't be profitable to run the site," he said. "There just isn't enough business to support it."

Envirosafe operates two hazardous-waste dumps in Owyhee County. The second dump is near Grand View. Envirosafe is applying for a permanent permit for that facility.

The Bruneau dump, which has thousands of gallons of liquid hazardous waste in its underground structures, now is under a temporary operating permit. No waste has been taken to the site since 1983, Haack said.

He said the decison on whether to close the Bruneau dump would be made within a month.

Hofer said permanent closure of the site would include installation of decontaminating equipment, putting a graded stone cap on the storage areas and establishing a fund to maintain the site for 30 years.

Once the dump was closed, the waste probably would remain stored there permanently, Hofer said. But he said he was concerned that an aquifer that runs about 1,000 feet below the dump could be contaminated by leaking waste, if it was not already contaminated.

Commissioner says counties should settle

POCATELLO (AP) — Thirty-five Idaho counties should pursue an out-of-court settlement of their property tax fight with Union Pacific Railroad, Idaho Tax Commissioner Darwin Young said Thursday.

The counties are considering whether to allow the State Tax Commission to appeal 4th District Judge Deborah Bail's order that they refund $650,000 in 1980 property tax overcharges to Union Pacific.

Young said appeal of the $650,000 refund to the Idaho Supreme Court should be secondary to resolving differences in tax formula calculations for 1981-83. The state contends only $1 million is owed U.P. in tax refunds for those years, but the railroad says the figure is closer to $2 million.

The railroad contacted the tax commission about a week ago on whether the parties involved would be willing to discuss a settlement, but no offers were made, Young said.

"We said we wanted to talk with the counties before making a decision," he said.

The tax commission and Union Pacific are scheduled to appear before Judge Bail May 16 to argue motions seeking to modify her ruling on the $650,000 refund. They have also scheduled a May 9 meeting between themselves to discuss the matter.

Young said it's hoped Judge Bail will use new data from his commission to set a new refund amount.

Caldwell cop cited

CALDWELL (AP) — A Caldwell policeman was cited for failing to stop at a flashing red light after his patrol car and another vehicle collided.

There were no reports of serious injuries in the Wednesday collision of vehicles operated by Patrolman Mike Nuss and Caldwell resident Dwight Comfort, Caldwell Police Capt. Alfred Wing said.

Court listens as Hutton pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc., a leading Wall Street brokerage firm, pleaded guilty Thursday to 2,000 counts of mail and wire fraud resulting from a scheme to intentionally write checks in excess of funds on deposit at more than 400 U.S. commercial banks.

Calling it "a sad and difficult day for E.F. Hutton and for me personally," Robert Fomon, chairman and chief executive officer of the nation's fifth largest brokerage house, said the practices alleged by the Justice Department "represented violations of our policy and procedures."

Attorney General Edwin Meese III told a news conference the guilty plea sends "a message to the business world that so-called white-collar crime . . . will not be tolerated."

No individuals were named in a 2,000-count mail and wire fraud criminal information filed by the department in U.S. District Court in Scranton, Pa. Nor was the parent E.F. Hutton Group Inc., named in the criminal information.

E.F. Hutton agreed to pay a $2 million fine — the maximum allowed under the law — and to establish an $8 million fund to cover restitutions to banks, which will be decided by a court-appointed special master, and to pay the goverment $750,000 to defray the costs of the federal investigation.

Trading in Hutton stock was suspended at the firm's request on the New York Stock Exchange at the start of Thursday's trading, and company executives postponed until May 17 a shareholders meeting that had been scheduled in New York today.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, at the company's request, voted to waive for 180 days the requirements of the Investment Company Act which would have called for automatic suspension of the company's registration as an investment adviser.

Spokeswoman Mary McCue said the commission will be reviewing the case during this time to determine what further action might be appropriate and said that they granted the waiver at Hutton's request to prevent upheaval in the securities markets.

Fomon said "the practices to which the company pleaded guilty did not in any way jeopardize the security of customer or client funds."

The entering of the guilty plea by E.F. Hutton came after the Justice Department filed the criminal information.

"The essence of the charges was that Hutton obtained the interest-free use of millions of dollars by intentionally writing checks in excess of the funds it had on deposit in various banks," the department said.

Vandals invade Omaha Beach

PARIS (AP) — The unguarded U.S. military cemetery at Omaha Beach in Normandy was invaded by vandals who splattered the main monument with slogans, many of them anti-Jewish, an official reported Thursday.

He said it was the first such incident at the site since a permanent cemetery was created at Omaha Beach in 1954 to replace temporary burial grounds dug during the war.

Many casualties of the June 6, 1944 Allied invasion at Normandy are buried in the cemetery. More than a million visitors come each year to the cemetery overlooking Omaha Beach.

The official, who declined to be named under the regulations of the American Battle Monuments Commission, said the vandals struck Monday night or early Tuesday.

He said they spray-painted at least 20 slogans in French on the walls of the main monument facing the 9,388 graves, and on the "Wall of the Missing" in a sunken garden where the names of 1,557 missing in action in Normandy are recorded.

Nicaragua sends off advisers

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — One hundred Cuban military advisers left Thursday after an official send-off by the government, but one of their leaders said they were prepared to return "to offer our lives if that is necessary."

Angel Gonzalez Castillo, speaking for the Cubans, said the departure was emotional "because we have grown fond of the Nicaraguan people for the great effort they make to defend the country from enemy aggression."

The leftist Sandinista government has said the departure leaves 700 Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua. U.S. officials say there are at least 2,000 military advisers, among a total of 8,000 Cubans, including teachers and health workers, in the country.

Swedish workers on strike

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — More than 20,000 government employees in key jobs went on strike Thursday in a demand for higher pay, disrupting air traffic, shipping and other services.

Immediately after the selective strike by the 265,000-member white collar union took effect at noon, the government announced plans to start a lockout in an attempt to exhaust union strike funds.

"We have no other choice," said Birger Backstrom, director general of the government employers' agency. He said 100,000 employees, including most of the country's teachers, would be locked out starting May 10 unless the strike was halted.

The union chairman, Hans Hellers, said the government lockout would be in vain. "We can hold out until the (September) elections," he said.

Walesa assails government

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa told the government Thursday to expect violence if it continues to "govern only with clubs." He spoke a day after May Day street battles between demonstrators and riot police.

Shortly before Walesa made his statement, two of his leading comrades — Jacek Kuron and Seweryn Jaworski — were ordered to prison for three months for taking part in an illegal but peaceful May Day march. Kuron is a leading dissident intellectual and Jaworski is a Warsaw leader of the outlawed union.

Kuron and Jaworski were among scores of Solidarity supporters detained by police during anti-government protests Wednesday in at least five Polish cities, according to dissident sources.

Fights close Beirut crossings

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Warring militias exchanged rocket-propelled grenades and machine-gun fire in Beirut on Thursday, forcing closure of all but one crossing of the mid-city frontier.

Christian members of the coalition government boycotted a Cabinet session to protest a Moslem and Druse assault on Christians in southern Lebanon, and the state radio said Cabinet sessions have been suspended indefinitely.

The fighting around Kfar Falous, the Christian hilltop outpost near Jezzine, was reported to have died down.

Christian and Moslem militiamen on both sides of the green line frontier in the capital built up fortifications around their positions, dumping truckloads of earth to form new barricades. They exchanged fire throughout the day.

Police said they had no immediate word on casualties.

Famine victims forced to leave

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Many of the 58,000 famine victims evicted from an emergency camp are sick or starving and may die in long marches through cold mountain weather to their home districts, international relief officials said Thursday.

The Marxist government's relief director insisted that the people were healthy and left the Ibnet camp voluntarily. He said they were returning home to plant crops now that rain had begun to fall on drought-stricken Ethiopia, and would be provided with food, seed, fertilizer, tools and oxen.

But the Rev. Jack Finnucane, who helped run the camp, contradicted Dawit, saying he saw people forced out in "a very harsh" manner and that when he flew in a small plane over the area he saw starving children and elderly people trudging along mountain paths below.

Nicaragua: Embargo is an act of war

By The Associated Press

Nicaragua said the U.S. trade embargo is an act of war and that it will protest to the World Court, and the Soviet Union said Thursday that President Reagan has a "pathological hatred" for the Sandinista government.

Algeria predicted that the embargo will reinforce the determination of Nicaragua's leftist rulers to radicalize their revolution. President Chadli Benjedid of Algeria recently paid his first visit to Washington, a sign of warming relations.

Venezuela said both the embargo and the current tour of Communist nations by Nicaragua's president, Daniel Ortega, could harm regional peace efforts in Central America.

"We lament that on both sides, actions or decisions are being taken which affect the (peace) process," Foreign Minister Simon Alberto Consalvi told reporters.

Nicaragua has appealed to the Soviet Union for economic aid, and Vice President Sergio Ramirez said he will seek help from all quarters in an effort to ease the embargo's effect.

In the Nicaraguan capital, Managua, officials and businessmen said the economic blockade might ruin the national airline, damage agriculture and cripple transportation and communication.

Ortega said Reagan's action would "most likely be accompanied by military action." He did not elaborate, but Nicaragua often has predicted a U.S. invasion, which American officials say is not being considered.

He spoke in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, during his tour of the the Soviet Union and eight other Communist nations in seach of economic aid.

In imposing the embargo Wednesday by executive order, Reagan blamed Nicaragua's growing military ties with the Soviet bloc and what it called attempts to export revolution.

The order, which followed congressional rejection of Reagan's request for $14 million in aid to aid Nicaraguan rebels fighting the Sandinista government, also ends access to the United States for Nicaragua's national airline and its commercial ships.

When Ramirez, the Nicaragan vice president, was asked whether the embargo would lead to closer ties with the Soviets, he said: "We will seek help in all those countries that want to support us and that includes the Soviet Union."

In San Francisco, Nicaragua's foreign trade minister, Alejandro Martinez, called the embargo "an act of war."

Prime Minister Bob Hawke of Australia told a news conference Thursday in Canberra that he would have advised against the boycott if he had been consulted.

Blacks die as rioting takes rise

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A mob of blacks pelted police with rocks Thursday and the officers opened up with shotguns and pistols, killing two of the attackers, authorities said.

Three policemen were reported injured.

Another black died in a mass assault on the home of a black official who fired into the crowd, a police statement said.

The latest chapter in nine bloody months of rioting against the racial policies that guarantee white privilege came a day after three mid-term elections. The ruling National Party confirmed its hold on the white-minority government by winning all of them.

The battle in which police opened fire took place in Kwanobuhle, a riot-torn black township nine miles inland from Port Elizabeth, on the Indian Ocean in the eastern Cape Province, according to a police statement.

It said police on a truck shot into a mob of stone-throwing blacks, killing one man, and a shotgun blast killed another when the blacks regrouped and attacked again.

The third black was killed when a black township councillor fired on a crowd attacking his home near the Orange Free State town of Welkom, police reported.

Blacks have made frequent attacks on other blacks they see as collaborating with the government, through which South Africa's 5 million whites dominate and deny basic rights, such as voting, to the 22 million blacks.

In the mid-term elections, National Party candidates won one seat in Parliament and a seat each on the Natal and Orange Free State provincial councils.

Iranian warplanes attack oil tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iranian warplanes attacked an oil tanker Thursday in the Persian Gulf northeast of Qatar, setting it afire and wounding some members of the crew, shipping and marine salvage executives said.

They said the ship was abandoned and U.S. Navy vessels took part in rescue operations.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London confirmed an attack on the 20,085-ton Nordic Trader, registered in Liberia, and said warplanes also attacked but missed a second tanker, the 117,596-ton Japan Aster.

The Nordic Trader was about 80 miles north of Doha, Qatar, and the Japan Aster was about 35 miles away, gulf shipping sources said.

Restaurant chain patrons give Big Boy reprieve

AP Laserphoto

Actor Dave Ketchum, Richard Marriott with restaurant mascot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Big Boy, the pudgy, portly restaurant mascot, has won a reprieve from oblivion with a vote that any politician would envy and the cheers of a well-paid high school student body.

By a vote of 3,291,871 to 500,874, patrons of the 835 restaurant franchises in 35 states decided the cheerful fellow in the red-and-white checkered overalls should stay.

"I love the Big Boy," said Jeanette Kern, 16, one of 1,500 Hollywood High School students who screamed hysterically over the fate of the 49-year-old figure at the announcement ceremony in the high school gym Wednesday.

Richard Marriott, executive vice president of the Marriott Corp., which franchises the Glendale-based restaurant chain, said he had expected the public to reject the mascot.

"We won't change his pompadour hairdo. We won't change his overalls," he promised as the high school band struck up "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The students, who had received T-shirts and flags from the Big Boy chain, erupted into pandemonium when the decision was announced: Screams grew frenzied, balloons popped, confetti flew.

Some, however, were disappointed.

"I want him to go," said Michelle Eget, 16. "I want something more masculine, with a better body."

During the past two months, the restaurants taunted customers with placemats that said, "How can you eat at a time like this?" and TV ads encouraged diners to vote either to "Save A Star" or "Ban The Bozo."

In one ad, Speedy Alka-Seltzer, the Dutch Paint boys and the Michelin tire man campaigned door-to-door to save their contemporary.

Marriott said the campaign has paid off in sales. In 60 company-owned stores, sales were up 8 percent for the year to date, said Vince Webb, director of marketing for Big Boy.

Hollywood High was chosen for the event because the Big Boy chain began in nearby Glendale when Bob Wian opened a 10-seat diner in 1936, publicist David Beckwith said.

As a school specializing in theater arts, Hollywood High School also has aspiring actors and actresses among its students.

The company gave the student body $5,000 for participating in the ceremony, said student treasurer Zorab Mkhitarian, 17.

Last weekend, a Fort Wayne, Ind., television station appeared to have tipped Big Boy's hand when it aired a commercial saying Big Boy had been granted a reprieve.

"It was a total boo-boo," said Ellen Handlin, marketing director of Azar's Inc. of Fort Wayne, a Big Boy franchisee.

Restaurant publicist Lydia Hilton in Los Angeles said the ballots weren't in at the time and the ad wasn't necessarily supposed to run at all.

She said TV and radio stations around the country have been sent two commercials: "In one Big Boy lives. In the other, he dies."

Florida paid back

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A transient with a history of arrests for sexual offenses got a one-way ticket to Florida in what the police chief called an attempt to pay that state back for ordering a prostitute to California.

"I figured we owed a few to Florida," Chief James Keane said. "They sent us the prostitute and I figured if they wanted to play one-upmanship with California, we'll take them on any time."

Weston J. Hill, 44, boarded an Eastern Airlines flight March 19 from Los Angeles International Airport to Miami. The city paid for his ticket.

Police Sgt. William Brucker quoted Hill as saying he had "sought to start a new life in the Sunshine State."

Green River murderer may have left Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The killer known as the Green River murderer may have moved from this area, leaving at least 29 and possibly 43 victims behind, says the police officer trying to track him down.

Capt. Frank Adamson heads the Green River Task Force, 40 police officers trying to find whoever is responsible for a series of slayings in and around Seattle since 1982.

Police blame 29 deaths on the killer, with 14 more women missing and believed possible victims.

Besides them, Adamson said Wednesday, the deaths of 38 women and girls from 1973 to 1982 in three counties around Seattle are still unexplained.

He said police have no indication the local killings have gone on beyond March 1984, when Cindy Anne Smith, 17, believed to be a victim, was last seen alive.

"But can we be sure?" asked Adamson.

He said detectives have been interested in eight deaths in Spokane that "may or may not" be similar to the Green River killings. An additional nine to 11 deaths studied in Portland, Ore., do not seem to match up, he said.

If the killer has moved, Adamson said, he hopes the task force can get information from police elsewhere about any similar killings.

He said the Puget Sound area has been successful in identifying serial-killer crimes, but links between killings are not always seen by other law enforcement agencies.

The Green River killer was named because the bodies of the first known victims were found along the Green River south of Seattle. Many were prostitutes or women apparently picked up in places frequented by prostitutes near Seattle-Tacoma International Airport.

Nightclub striptease act revealed more than woman wanted to see

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: All the employees of the restaurant where I recently took a job as cashier went to a nightclub to celebrate the birthdays of those of us who were born in March.

First a young girl came out and did a singing telegram number that turned out to be a striptease, but that wasn't too bad. Then a man ran out on the stage wearing a false face mask with long gray hair attached to it. He danced around, removing first his mask, next his shirt, then his shoes and socks.

Then he took off his trousers, revealing a pair of shorts on which was printed some vulgar messages. He continued his dancing, left the stage and came out into the audience making a lot of sexy movements, twisting his buttocks in everybody's face. Pretty soon he was down to a G-string, and when that came off he was bare naked except for a garter around his neck!

Abby, I've been married for 18 years, and the only man I've ever seen naked was my husband.

If I had been told what was coming and asked if I wanted to leave, I would have left, but I had to sit there for the whole show, which lasted 30 minutes. The entire audience was laughing and screaming. I wanted to crawl into a hole.

What are my constitutional rights? At least movies are rated so people know what to expect. Why not nightclub entertainment?

DISGUSTED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR DISGUSTED: Minors are protected under the law, but it is assumed that adults who go to such clubs know what kind of entertainment to expect.

The moment you felt uncomfortable, you had a constitutional right to walk out.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I have been living together for the last year. Before we lived together, my parents offered to pay the entire cost of our wedding. We are being married soon and have started to make the final arrangements, but their offer has not been mentioned again.

What is the tradition regarding who pays for the wedding? And does living together change the rules?

— CURIOUS BRIDE-TO-BE

DEAR CURIOUS: Traditionally, the bride's parents pay for the wedding, but there are not "rules" that obligate them to do so. (It's a gift.)

Traditionally, the couple wait until after they are married to live together, so possibly your parents broke with the tradition of paying for your wedding because you and your fiance broke with tradition by living together.

I suggest you discuss this with your parents.

Twin Falls seniors given only a part of grant

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rupert and Buhl were awarded federal block grant money to acquire senior citizen centers Thursday, but Twin Falls received only a portion of the money it requested to remodel a donated building into a senior citizen's center.

Twin Falls, which applied for $100,000 in matching money, was awarded $41,412 Monday to remodel the old KMVT-TV studio.

In addition, the seniors should have about that much in a building fund by August when the studios should become available, said Twin Falls Councilman Gale Kleinkopf.

The total should be enough to install a kitchen, build restrooms and knock out some office walls so the building will be usable, he said.

A state advisory committee gave priority to cities which urgently needed to purchase or build new centers, such as Buhl and Rupert, said Jan Blickenstaff, a state official who will help administer the grants.

Of the 20 cities applying, Twin Falls ranked eighth with its remodeling project and was the last one to receive a grant, he said. At that point $41,412 was all that was left.

With only part of the money being granted, the Senior Citizens Board will have little choice but to move the center to the studio building, Kleinkopf said. The city accepted the donation, but the seniors have not yet decided whether to accept the donated building or to make an effort to save the building being used now.

A few seniors have complained about heavier traffic near the KMVT studio, but much of the building used now is unsafe and would have to be demolished and replaced at a greater cost than remodeling the studios.

Rupert received one of only two $100,000 grants awarded in the state for senior centers.

Ruth Johnson, head of the Minidoka Senior Citizen Center Board, says the group will match the money with savings already accumulated to construct a 5,000-square-foot building on city land on 11th Street.

The project should be completed by next summer, allowing the center to expand its services to include meals prepared at the center, a woodworking shop and space for dances and parties.

The group is now using an old residence owned by American Legion. The center is not large enough, and its steep stairways and small rooms are not appropriate for a center, Johnson says.

Buhl officials will use the city's $58,600 grant to purchase the Buhl Hotel Building on Main Street that the West End Senior Citizens group now rents.

The city applied for the grant when the building's mortgage was in default, which could have jeopardized the senior's lease, says Buhl attorney Brent Martens.

About $75,000 will be used to purchase the building and the rest of the grant and matching funds will be used to reroof the building and do interior work including dropping the ceiling and relocating doors and stairways, says J-U-B engineer Scott Bybee.

State officials hope funding will create new jobs in region

By The Associated Press
and Times-News

BOISE — Some 30 Idaho communities will be splitting up $7.4 million in federal grants, and Gov. John Evans says the emphasis is on creating new jobs.

The governor on Thursday announced the allocation of a federal block grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Eight of the grants were for senior citizen projects, five funded multi-year projects and the rest were one-time allocations.

Evans said an advisory committee, headed by Burley Mayor Chuck Shadduck, evaluated 70 grant applications seeking $18 million in funding. He said he accepted the committee's recommendations on which projects should be funded.

"We went through two long, long days" making the recommendations, said Shadduck.

He praised the block grant program as one federal program that gives money with few strings attached.

"The emphasis was on jobs for Idahoans," the governor said. "The projects that create jobs got their requests for assistance."

The governor's office estimated that projects funded by the block grants will create 1,000 jobs and generate about $25.3 million in private investment.

Evans said this year for the first time, money was allocated specifically for senior citizen programs. Projects costing $371,000 were funded for Rupert, Salmon, Rathdrum, Buhl, Payette, Meridian, Idaho City and Twin Falls. The largest grants were $100,000 each for Rupert and Rathdrum.

Shadduck said the advisory committee hopes to cover the rest of the senior citizen requests next year.

Evans said economic development is important to Idaho any time, but especially this year. He said state unemployment is up and "gloomy clouds are on the horizon" for many of Idaho's basic industries.

The federal funds were split up $4,618,450 for new projects, $371,000 for senior citizens and $1,795,000 for multi-year grants.

Workers, backers buy up newspaper

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Employees of the Wood River Journal, published in Hailey, have bought the newspaper from its Utah-based parent company.

Three employees, led by General Manager Clint Stennett, closed the deal with the Standard-Examiner Co. of Ogden, Utah, this week and have taken over full ownership with the help of a group of financial backers.

Joining Stennett in the purchase are Editor Scot Kersgaard and Carrie Bashaw, a reporter. The group's backers have chosen to remain anonymous except for Don Atkinson, an owner of Atkinsons' Markets in Ketchum and Hailey.

Stennett, who now becomes the paper's publisher, says the three staff members will buy the paper from its backers over a two-year period and take full financial control of the weekly newspaper.

Control of the newspaper's editorial content and management will stay with the employees, says Stennett. He says the financial backers' interest in the paper is only to keep two newspapers in the community.

"All they're doing is helping us out," Stennett says.

He and former publisher Gordon O. Glasmann say the Idaho Mountain Express of Ketchum also was interested in buying the Journal, which is the descendant of Blaine County's oldest newspaper.

"I'm pleased the staff and I were able to pull it off, and I look forward to great things," Stennett says about the purchase.

Although only three employees have invested in the paper to make the purchase possible, Stennett says an employees stock-sharing program may begin once some of the initial debt to the backers is paid off.

Ketchum application to aid water system turned down

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

BOISE — The city of Ketchum's application for a $335,100 economic development grant to extend its water system for fire protection in the downtown failed to qualify in this year's state block grant program.

Jan Blickenstaff, director of the program for the Division of Economic and Community Affairs, says Ketchum's application barely missed being a part of the $7.4 million in awards announced by Gov. John Evans on Thursday.

The state, however, placed the application on a stand-by list, and the city may receive funds if any awards are withdrawn. Otherwise the city will have to wait and apply again next year, Blickenstaff says.

He says the grant's failure had nothing to do with a protest filed against it by the owner of a private water utility in Ketchum.

Jim Jaquet, Ketchum city administrator, says he is disappointed the grant failed to qualify because it hinders the city's firefighting ability and will force some developers to pay for extending water lines within the city.

Developers of new construction in the downtown must pay for the extensions to meet the water requirements of the Uniform Fire Code.

"That's going to create some economic hardships on those private developers and postpone the time when we can assure adequate fire flows in the downtown district," he says.

The domestic water supply in the downtown is supplied by Ketchum Spring Water Supply Co. Inc., a private utility the city says cannot supply the 2,500 gallons per minute required by the fire code.

Despite the city's claim, William Touw, owner of the utility, challenged the grant application in a letter to the division by saying the city has blocked efforts to allow him to increase his downtown water supplies. Touw also accused the city of attempting to drive him out of business.

Touw also is challenging the city's attempt to expand its water system in court.

Blickenstaff says Touw's protest to the grant was given to the division's evaluation committee, but the application was considered only on its merits.

He says Ketchum's application wasn't rated higher because it would not have a direct impact on the creation of new jobs, the primary standard for judging the applications from communities from around the state.

Last year, Ketchum received a $350,000 grant to extend its water supply to about half the downtown business district for fire protection.

The city had argued for the grant because the extension of the water lines to the rest of the business core would relieve an economic burden on private developers and stimulate more development to the downtown.

Appeals judge says Idaho needs guidelines for sentencing

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It is time in Idaho for guidelines to correct disparities in sentencings and judgments in the various courts around the state, Donald L. Burnett, Idaho's Intermediate Court of Appeals chief judge, said Thursday in a law day address to the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club.

Burnett said that because of the wide disparity in criminal sentencings, "some criminals are now inclined to feel their sentence is just a bad break rather than their punishment for the crime they committed," he said.

Burnett, who became the first appeals court judge in the state when the court began functioning in 1982, gave his audience a look at the laws of the state and country from the court's position.

He termed individual rights the most important legal factor in the country today.

Burnett drew a parallel between the rights of 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei Sakharov of the USSR, and those of Rosa Parks, the American black woman who in the 1950s took her complaint about public bus restrictions for blacks through the nation's court system.

Sakharov helped develop the hydrogen bomb in his country, but was later jailed and exiled because he advocated the banning of such weapons in the interest of world peace, the speaker said.

He won the Nobel Prize but his country refused to allow him to accept it. Sakharov had no court rights. His country offered him no legal system that could guarantee his right to think," Burnett said.

"He had made a great scientific contribution to his country, but that unknown American Negro woman found she had more rights than Sakharov ever had. She had a right to think and a right to present her claim."

Burnett said three vital factors in the American court system provide those rights to think and make a claim, the right to legal assistance in making the claim and right to have the courts hear and rule on it.

He said that nationwide, courts are issuing stiffer sentences in criminal cases than they were a few years ago, but he stressed that judges must also be sure there are adequate facilities available for prisoners.

"There are several things a judge must look at in deciding a sentence," the speaker said. "The judge must see both the offense and the offender. The judge must protect society, determine retribution, consider deterents to others and rehabilitation for the offender."

Burnett said because of increasing civil cases before the courts, the legal profession often comes in for criticism over excessive damage claims. He argued the legal profession is not at fault, and said Idaho does not have a "litigation explosion" as do some areas.

In Idaho, he said there were 46,000 lawsuits or claims filed in 1979. In 1984, the number rose to 50,000 or only about 8.5 to 9 percent.

At the same time, he said the number of practicing attorneys in Idaho increased by a much higher percentage. Lawyers, he said, are not promoting suits as some allege.

The speaker criticized the country's news coverage showing interest only in the criminal cases and the bizarre civil cases.

"Despite good intentions, the news coverage is not adequate for civil litigations," he said. "Too often there is coverage when a major civil action is filed, but no follow-up to tell the public the outcome of the suit or claim."

He said Idaho is the first state to establish time limit guidelines for moving both criminal and civil cases through the court system. He added some delays still continue because of the case loads but many backlogs are being wiped out.

The appeals judge said there are some reasons to avoid litigation in favor of mediation or arbitration, but he said litigation is still the factor that preserves the individual "entitlement" or inalienable rights guaranteed in the constitution."

Businessman pleads guilty to exposing himself to teen

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A psychological evaluation and a withheld judgment were ordered Thursday for a Twin Falls businessman accused of exposing himself to a teen-age babysitter Jan. 24.

James E. Salisbury, 31, earlier pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of disorderly conduct. According to a complaint filed in Fifth District Magistrate Court, Salisbury had underdressed in front of a 14-year-old girl who was watching his children. The girl's father contacted police.

Salisbury said he was in a hurry and had not realized the girl was present and was not guilty of willful misconduct.

He also said that being undressed in his home was "normal behavior," but Magistrate Judge Mel Edwards said Thursday that as far as he was concerned, it

Summer school scholarship help being sought

TWIN FALLS — A $35 donation will buy two scholarships to the Twin Falls school district's summer school.

Summer school co-principal Kay Jones said Thursday the summer school program has had 20 children express interest in the program who cannot afford the tuition. Scholarship donations will pay half the cost of a student's tuition, she says.

She says she and co-principal Shirley Wilson-Bates are running out of time to seek donations and will accept any amount.

Registration for summer school will be held May 8 at Morningside Elementary School from 5 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, May 11, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Tuition will be $35 for Twin Falls students and $45 for students from outside the Twin Falls district. Classes will run from June 12 to July 12.

The Twin Falls school board has said it will find $5,000 in the school budget or from private sources to underwrite the $35 tuition.

Jones says the school will need to sign up at least 125 students before it can open its doors. The ideal number would be near 150. She said 200 students have expressed an interest in the program, but she doesn't know how many of those will sign up.

Jones is a sixth-grade teacher and Bates teaches Chapter 1 math at the Lincoln Elementary School.

The program is a remedial program, but will not make up for failing grades or absences in excess of the number permitted by the 90 percent attendance rule, Jones says.

With two hour-and-a-half sessions each day, the school is aimed at students who aren't doing as well as they or their parents might like. "We're trying to have a real up-beat, motivating program to get those kids going," Jones says.

Each session will cover reading, language, and math, using workbooks that are not used during the regular school year.

Parents will be responsible for transportation to and from Morningside, where the classes will meet from 8:45 to 10:30 a.m. daily. Jones says car pools will be organized as much as possible.

Students will not receive grades for the courses, but parents will receive weekly progress reports.

Students from Filer, Kimberly, Buhl, and Jerome have expressed interest, in addition to Twin Falls public and private school students, Jones says.

Four teachers have been hired and two more are "on the sidelines" and will be hired if they are needed.

Area's Eagle Scouts hear from BYU players

BURLEY — Magic Valley Eagle Scouts heard from two BYU athletes and former Boy Scouts Wednesday night at the 36th annual Eagle Scout recognition banquet.

Kevin Doman, a redshirt wide receiver for the BYU football team, and Andy Toolson, Twin Falls, of the BYU basketball team, spoke to the Scouts about setting goals and never quitting.

"If your mind can conceive it and your heart can believe it, you can achieve it," said Doman.

The phrase is one he carries in his wallet, he says. Doman said he first learned to set goals at a church meeting when he was 13. He started with a list of 213, including killing a rattlesnake.

When he got to BYU, his football coach emphasized goal-setting and set as a pre-season goal an undefeated season. The BYU football team was undefeated last year in regular season play. Doman is an Eagle Scout.

Toolson, who graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1984, said sacrifice goes along with goal-setting.

Grants

program grants, here are the grants awarded to Magic Valley communities:

• The community of Gooding will receive $370,000 to help launch work on construction of a new private prison, using the old state tuberculosis hospital. That project is expected to spur the investment of $10 million in private funds by Buckingham Security Ltd., a Pennsylvania firm.

The grant completes the city's obligation to the private, regional prison, Gooding Mayor Gene Heller said.

The single purpose grant will be awarded over two years, with Gooding receiving $370,000 this year and $350,000 next year.

The money will be used to install a 1-million-gallon water storage tank near the prison site to insure adequate water supplies and fire protection. The money also will be used to upgrade the water lines and improve sewer lift stations for servicing the prison.

Gooding installed a new waste water treatment plant two years ago, and officials say the facility is adequate to handle the projected prison use.

The second installment of the grant will be used for improved water lines in the northeast section of Gooding to provide for a planned industrial park, Heller said.

Beautification of the downtown business district is also planned for next year.

• Cassia County's block grant for $350,000 will be used as a loan to a local business that is expanding into a new line of manufacturing.

The county will assist Wes's Inc., an iron and welding works in Burley, to expand into the manufacture and assembly of a reversible high efficiency motor to be marketed throughout the country. The expansion, planned over a period of the next 18 months, will provide 90 new jobs in the community.

Region 4 Development Association Economic Development Specialist Donna Batch, who prepared the Cassia County grant application, said 87 percent of the jobs will be available to low and moderate income workers, and local labor forces will be supplying most of the workers.

• A $300,000 grant to the city of Burley will be used for the extension of sewer and water lines along the northwest access route to Burley. The improvement has far-reaching implications, Batch said, as it will open up more than 200 acres of land for industrial and commercial development.

One developer has registered his intent to develop the west end of the land, which is on the town's by-pass route, into sites for industries and commercial businesses along with a golf course and condominiums along the Snake River.

About 100 jobs and an overall final development investment of about $7 million are contingent upon the city's sewer and water project, Batch said. The current grant is expected to be matched by $800,000 in Economic Development Agency funding, Batch said the application for this is now under final review in the Seattle EDA office and is expected to be approved in the near future.

• The $50,600 grant to the city of Hagerman will be used to build a sewage pipeline to the Snake River.

In 1978, construction began on a $1.3 million three-pond sewer lagoon system which replaced many old septic tanks in the city. The Environmental Protection Agency donated 75 percent of the new system's cost, the state Health and Welfare Department provided 15 percent and 10 percent was raised by the city.

But the lagoon system was built on porous rock and never worked properly. In 1981, a moratorium was put on all new hook-ups outside the city, and money from a legal settlement from the lagoons' engineers was used to rebuild and line one pond which currently handles all city sewage.

Hagerman City Council President Audrey Hoffman says she is not surprised Hagerman got the grant.

"We were told several months ago we were one of the top priorities in the state," she says. "We've got a health problem . . . It's been a burden on the city."

The new system, she adds, will clean and transport sewage to the river west of Hagerman for about one-third of the cost of fixing another pond. When the pipeline and filtration system are completed, the moratorium will be lifted, she said.

• The city of Glenns Ferry will receive $250,000 to establish a revolving loan program for local businesses.

Mayor Dayle Messerly said the city's grant application was different this year from former years and was targeted at a local industry that could generate new jobs for the town, said Messerly.

"Idaho Circuit Technology will get the lion's share of the grant as we outlined in our application," said Messerly. "But this is a revolving loan, so as they pay back the city, we'll be able to make funding available for other small businesses and projects in town."

ICT manager Bill Lindner said the grant stabilizes the company financially and will stimulate growth.

"It'll give us access to greater markets," said Lindner. He said the company will use the grant to purchase a driller-router and make palletized boards.

• Twin Falls was awarded $135,000, the final payment in a three-year grant for the Chamber of Commerce industrial area. Most of the money will be used for a well and an accompanying booster system to improve water pressure.

wasn't normal behavior in the state.

The sentence imposed by Edwards reflected the recommendations of Twin Falls City Attorney Shane O. Bengoechea. At the sentencing hearing, Salisbury represented himself.

Edwards ordered a psychological evaluation and any recommended treatment. Salisbury received a withheld sentence for one year. If he successfully completes the conditions ordered by Edwards and is not charged with any other crime, the misdemeanor charge of disorderly conduct would be wiped off his record. The judge also ordered a 30-day jail sentence, but suspended it.

In his statement to magistrate court, a copy of which Salisbury provided to The Times-News, Salisbury stated he was sorry, admitted he was at fault and careless and promised that no such incident would happen again.

He asked the court to keep the sentence in proportion to the circumstances, "rather than the exaggerated charges of willful criminal or perverted behavior."

Salisbury stated that the complaint concerned "normal behavior in the sanctity of my own home, and nowhere else."

"I have never deliberately exposed myself to anyone," Salisbury stated. "Even though I have freely and admittedly accepted fault and responsibility for this incident, I do not believe that I am worthy of a criminal record as a result of having been accidentally seen doing perfectly normal things in my own home."

Yet, Salisbury also told Edwards of a previous similar incident with another babysitter. In that case, Salisbury said he was undressing in the bathroom when his child began screaming. He went to the baby's room to see what had happened and the babysitter saw him undressed.

Before pronouncing the sentence, Edwards told Salisbury, "It is not standard behavior. I do not view that as standard conduct in the average homes in this particular state, for that matter. Now maybe you do, but I guarantee you that if you do, you will be back in this court again."

Journal

There are no plans for immediate changes in the newspaper, and Stennett says he expects it to build on its reputation as a community newspaper.

"That's our primary emphasis — being community oriented and involved. And it's local ownership, I think we can maintain it," Stennett says.

Glasmann also says it is important for the owners of a weekly newspaper to live in the community.

"I've always felt that weeklies need the ownership in the community. I haven't done so for about five years," he says.

Glasmann lived in Bellevue for several years until 1980 when he moved to Jerome. He is the publisher of the North Side News of Jerome, which also is owned by the Standard-Examiner Co.

The Utah publishing company bought the Wood River Journal in 1972.

The "Wood River Times" began publishing in 1881 and served the booming mining communities of the Wood River Valley as a daily. It changed hands and names several times before being changed last from "The Hailey Times" when it was bought by the Standard-Examiner Co.

Jerome, Wood River dominate in A-2 meet

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome's boys and Wood River's girls took a good look at most of the A-2 competition in southern and eastern Idaho Thursday and should have liked what they saw.

In a preview of sorts, 10 A-2 schools gathered for the third annual Jerome A-2 Classic and when the smoke had cleared Jerome, without sprint star Dee Herfel, had out-distance runner-up Madison 155-91 while Wood River had a 140-103 advantage on Jerome in the girls division.

It also gave Jerome coaches Tim Dunne and Skip Andrew an idea about May 11's Cross State Conference finals on the same track, although other teams suchas Mountain Home and Caldwell will attend that one.

"It looks like Orofino and Bishop Kelly," said Dunne when asked to cast ahead toward state. "Orofino has some excellent field people in the weights, high jump, triple jump and a good sprinter. We'll go head-to-head against them a lot. If we have an edge, I suppose it would be with (Bryan) Bolich in the distances. Orofino hasn't shown a distance man yet."

"Bishop Kelly has some quality individuals but we only saw them at the Boise Relays and didn't get a good picture of their depth."

With Herfel out with a groin muscle strain, Jerome worried about its relays — but needn't have. It blew away with all four. Bolich continued to improve his distance times, getting third in the 3200 and winning the 1600 in 4:37.

There was some happy news for Wood River with the return to form of senior Maureen McGinnis, who won the 1600 and was second in the longer event. McGinnis, a state champion a couple of times as a sophomore, had been off form all spring.

"She's been ill and they've pumped her full of antibiotics," said Coach John Hopkins. "They've been out of her system now for five days. We think she's starting to come back."

Wood River's boys also had a pleasant happening when senior Dale Karst, in his first year of track, turned the 400 in 50.95. Karst has been hitting the mid-52s the past couple of weeks and Thursday's time puts him in contention against Herfel for the district quarter crown in a couple of weeks.

A rare south wind hampered some of the field and early running performances, the high hurdles and high jump especially. It became to calm during the 100-meter dash finals although the runners still were fighting a breeze at the time. After that conditions were nearly ideal and a total of 15 records were set for this still-young meet.

Phantom league's 'signings' throw NFL teams into chaos

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League disputed on Thursday John Bassett's claim that he has signed eight of its draft choices for his Tampa Bay franchise when the Bandits quit the United States Football League in 1986.

One of the players named by Bassett — Alabama linebacker Emanuel King, a first-round pick by the Cincinnati Bengals — also denied having signed with Bassett, who has split with the USFL over the young league's proposed shift from a spring-summer league to the fall next year.

But the agent of Steve Calabria said the Colgate quarterback will pass up the NFL's Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who drafted him in the ninth round, and sign a $2.6 million, four-year contract with the Bandits.

Joe Browne, director of information for the NFL, said there have been "a number of conflicting reports regarding Mr. Bassett's reported signings. Several of the players and/or their agents have denied publicly having signed any agreements or have denied them privately to our clubs."

"Obviously we don't have all the facts and circumstances," Browne said, "but on the other hand we still have 2½ months until training camp opens."

Bassett, who has steadfastly opposed the USFL's switch to the same season as the NFL and says he has lined up 12 owners and cities for another spring-summer league, said he had signed "provisional" contracts with King, Calabria and six other players and has made offers to two other players.

"They can talk to the NFL club who drafts them and if they get offered more, they can be released unless we match the offer," Bassett said.

He identified the other players as Memphis cornerback Derrick Burroughs (Buffalo's first-round pick), Nevada-Las Vegas quarterback Randall Cunningham (Philadelphia, second round), Memphis State defensive back Donnie Elder (New York Jets, third round), Alabama running back Ricky Moore (San Francisco, third round), Wisconsin center Dan Turk (Pittsburgh, fourth round), and Virginia Tech tight end Joe Jones (Dallas, 10th round).

"We also made outstanding offers to Bill Fralic and Mike Gann," Bassett said. Atlanta chose Fralic, an offensive lineman from Pitt, in the first round and Gann, a Notre Dame defensive lineman, in the second.

Browne quoted Norman Braman, the new owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, as saying he would not negotiate with Cunningham or Jim Steiner, Cunningham's agent.

"We will not allow outselves to be blackmailed or get into a bidding war," Browne quoted Braman as saying. "We have pledged to the fans of Philadelphia to return sanity to players' salaries and that's what we intend to do."

King said he hasn't spoken to Bassett, nor has he signed a contract. "I don't know anything about that," King said. "No, no, no. I wasn't in Tampa last Friday."

He also said his agent, Harold Daniels, hasn't told him of any contract offer by Bassett. "I know he (Bassett) is trying to sign some players for that league, but I haven't even been contacted about it," King said.

Calabria referred all contract questions to Bob Carpentier, his agent. Calabria said it was unlikely that the Buccaneers would match the Bandits' offer.

Carpentier said Calabria had signed a compensation agreement with Bassett in Tampa last Sunday that guarantees Calabria a signing bonus of about $700,000 and a $1 million annuity.

"We said we would sign within two weeks a formal standard USFL players contract that includes compensation terms and would end up giving Steve $2.6 million for four years, starting in the spring of 1986," Carpentier said.

Crown Chief challenges small 12-horse derby field

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Chief's Crown, described by his trainer as "a professional race horse," will challenge 12 other 3-year-old colts Saturday in the 111th Kentucky Derby.

The smallest Derby field since the filly Genuine Risk beat 12 rivals in 1980 offers an intriguing blend of front-runners such as Spend A Buck, Eternal Prince and Rhoman Rule and stretch-runners such as Proud Truth and Stephan's Odyssey.

Then there is the versatile Chief's Crown, who can play it several ways. Whether he comes from off the pace or whether he sets it, once in front, no horse has passed him.

"Once he makes the lead he doesn't pass the dice," said trainer Roger Laurin, whose father, Lucien, won the Derby with Riva Ridge in 1972 and with Secretariat in 1973.

"I like the hand I've got. I wouldn't trade my horse for the whole field." "Chief's Crown's a nice horse, the horse to beat, but he's not invincible," said trainer D. Wayne Lukas, whose Tank's Prospect underwent minor throat surgery in early April then won the Arkansas Derby April 20.

But Chief's Crown, whose training was interrupted by a slight virus in January, has been invincible this year, and Thursday he was made the early 9-5 favorite for the 1¼-mile Derby.

Proud Truth was made the second choice at 9-2, the entry of Rhoman Rule and Eternal Prince was listed at 5-1. Spend A Buck 6-1, Stephan's Odyssey and Tank's Prospect each 8-1, and Skywalker 12-1.

The outsiders are Fast Account, Floating Reserve, I Am The Game, Encolure and Irish Fighter.

Chief's Crown, who will be ridden by Don MacBeth from the No. 2 post, opened his 3-year-old campaign with a victory in the seven-furlong Swale on March 2 at Gulfstream Park. He then won the 1⅛-mile Flamingo wire-to-wire March 30 at Hialeah, then turned in a dazzling front-running victory in the Blue Grass Stakes at Kegeneland.

Last year Chief's Crown, owned by Star Crown Stable, managed by Andrew Rosen, scored six wins and two seconds in nine starts in winning the 2-year-old championship. One of the victories was in the $1 million Breeders' Cup Juvenile Nov. 10 at Hollywood Park in which Tank's Prospect finished second and Spend A Buck was third.

Following Chief's Crown's 5½-length victory in the Blue Grass in a splendid 1:47 3-5 for 1⅛ miles, Jerome "Bud" Sarner, trainer of third-place Banner Bob said:

"The winner does just what he has to do and that is it. I don't care who he goes up against, he's going to whip them."

Chief's Crown's rivals will begin their quest at 5:38 p.m. EDT, which is post time. The Derby will be televised live by ABC from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

If all 13 start under scale weight of 126 pounds, the race will be worth $581,800, with $406,800 to the winner.

Should Chief's Crown succeed, he would be the first winner of a juvenile championship to win the Derby since Spectacular Bid beat nine rivals in 1979. The last 2-year-old champion to run the Derby was Rockhill Native.

Tyler comes off bench to lead Detroit by Celts

DETROIT (AP) — Terry Tyler doesn't mind that he's not a starter for the Detroit Pistons.

The pressure in the National Basketball Association comes at the end of a ballgame — and that's where Tyler has been at his best in the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Tyler scored 16 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter Thursday night to lift the Pistons to a 125-117 semifinal victory over the Boston Celtics.

"I didn't force any shots," Tyler said. "I just tried to pick out shots where they were going to give it and I would take it.

"I always think when the fourth quarter comes, 'Do you want the challenge?' I try to be ready. I kind of like the pressure."

The victory left the Celtics with a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series. Game 4 is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday in Joe Louis Arena.

"I just think that in a seven-game series, it's detrimental if you don't win," Tyler said. "You know the game is going to go down to the wire. You've just got to be ready."

The Pistons led 98-96 as the fourth quarter opened and never relinquished the lead.

Detroit's Bill Laimbeer, who led the Pistons with 27 points, canned an 18-foot jumper and Vinnie Johnson followed with the tip in of an alley-oop pass from Isiah Thomas to give the Pistons a six-point margin.

The Celtics narrowed the Detroit lead to three points on two occasions, but each time Tyler led another surge.

"Terry's a good shooter," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "He's won some games for us down the stretch like in the New Jersey series where he and Kent Benson came in on Game 2 and won it for us in the fourth quarter. If we can get him the consistent minutes, he'll get his points."

Indeed, the last eight minutes of the final period were all Tyler as he hit the Pistons' final eight field goals, accounting for all Detroit's points except two Laimbeer free throws.

"They have a heck of a front court," Boston's Robert Parish said. "I don't know what Terry had, but he was on fire. I've never seen him like that."

Laimbeer and Boston's Robert Parish got into a shoving match with 7:32 remaining in the third quarter, but nothing came of it and the rest of the game, while rough, was cleanly played.

Boston led by as many as seven points in the first quarter, but the Pistons rallied behind Laimbeer, who had 12 in the opening period, to lead 38-34 at the end of the quarter.

With Larry Bird hitting six of his 25 points, the Celtics rallied to tie the game 62-62 at the half.

Dennis Johnson was high for Boston with 27 points but was guilty of six turnovers, some of which proved costly. Kevin McHale finished with 24 points and Danny Ainge, who had four personal fouls by halftime, finished with 15 for Boston. Parish finished with 13.

Thomas scored 26 for Detroit, John Long added 20 and Kelly Tripucka scored 13.

Lever's overtime points send Denver past Jazz

DENVER (AP) — It took a seven-point fourth-quarter to finally get the Denver Nuggets' attention.

Faced with having their National Basketball Association playoff series squared at 1-1 and having to go on the road for the next two games, the Nuggets rallied to beat Utah 131-123 in overtime Thursday night.

"I didn't think we played with much intensity until we got down 110-103," said Denver Coach Doug Moe.

"From that point on, I thought we played great — a lot like we've been playing all year. We got really aggressive and made some big defensive plays."

Denver trailed 110-103 with 7:21 left in regulation, but 10 straight Nugget points, five by Calvin Natt, erased the deficit. In overtime, guard Lafayette Lever scored six of his 22 points to pace the victory.

Utah scored only 13 points in the last 12 minutes of play, hitting just eight of its last 27 shots from the floor.

Afterward, Utah Coach Frank Layden gave his team a dressing down in the locker room.

"In this age of the very high-paid athlete, people are sometimes afraid to point things out to them that they failed at," Layden said.

"I'm not afraid to talk to my players about areas in which they failed. I think they all have to earn their money. I believe in the fact that each individual has personal responsibilities.

"We're down 2-0, and now we have to go back to Utah and shrink this series to a three-game series tied at 2-2."

Games Three and Four in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series will be played Saturday afternoon and Sunday night in Salt Lake City.

The Nuggets rallied twice from seven-point deficits in the final quarter, taking advantage of cold shooting by Utah in the period.

After Adrian Dantley's three-point play gave the Jazz a 110-103 lead with 7:21 remaining, Utah went nearly three minutes without another point while the Nuggets were scoring 10 straight for a 113-110 advantage.

Rickey Green's three-point play drew Utah into a 117-117 tie with 3:27 left, and Denver's Calvin Natt and Utah's Thurl Bailey exchanged free throws to account for the 119-119 deadlock at the end of regulation play.

Denver center Wayne Cooper hit two long-range jumpers early in overtime, and a Lever basket with 3:20 remaining in overtime put Denver ahead 127-123.

While Utah was suffering turnovers and missed shots, Lever sank four free throws in the closing minute to secure the victory.

Utah built a nine-point lead, their biggest of the game, on a Jeff Wilkins free throw midway through the second quarter. But Calvin Natt, Dan Issel, and Alex English led a Denver comeback that produced a 70-66 lead at intermission.

Wilkins scored eight points in the third quarter to help Utah to rebound to a six-point edge, but the Nuggets countered in the final quarter, sparked by reserve guard Elston Turner, who had eight points and five rebounds in the quarter.

Buhl amateur boasts strong title flight

BUHL — Magic Valley's amateur golf season gets underway this weekend with the Buhl Amateur again attracting a glittering field.

The tournament kicks off a series that will wind through Burley, Rupert, Jackpot and Gooding before winding up with the Magic Valley Amateur in Twin Falls over the Labor Day weekend.

But the Buhl most often draws the best championship flight, largely due to the entry of several top western Idahoans who seldom visit the other tournaments.

Returning to defend his title is Gordy Crockett of Caldwell while the winner two years ago, Glenn Blakeley of Burley, also is back.

"We think we have a good championship flight," admits Larry Francis, manager of the host Buhl Country Club. It includes 22 players, several of whom have held the Idaho state title.

Francis said he expected Joe Malay and Mike Sweet, two long hitters out of Weiser and Payette's Scott Masingill. He noted a pair of zero handicaps out of Ketchum, Darrell Hess and Craig Falco, are in the flight along with Andy Dicro of Pocatello.

Along with Blakeley hopes for a Magic Valley winner spring from the play of Kevin and Jim Packard of Twin Falls along with Perry Hanchey, Jim Purves and Dr. Chick Cutler.

Buhl hasn't had a homegrown winner for ages but Francis believes that Jim Welch is playing his best golf this year and Doug Mackay is down to a three and will be playing his own course.

Francis said the tournament is filled to its 110 quota.

It will follow the format of the past few years with all flights playing 18 holes per day.

Nipper hurls Sox to 2-1 win at Seattle

By The Associated Press

Al Nipper and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Rich Gedman cracked a solo homer as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 2-1 Thursday night.

Nipper, 1-1, held the Mariners scoreless until they punched across a run on Phil Bradley's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning. Bob Ojeda and Bob Stanley finished up, with Stanley recording his fourth save as the Red Sox snapped a five-game losing streak.

Gedman, the Boston catcher, lined a homer off Seattle starter Mike Moore, 2-3, in the second inning for his second homer of the season.

The Red Sox came into Seattle hitting only .195 on the road. They had seven hits off Moore in the first 3 13 innings. Leading 1-0 on Gedman's homer, Bill Buckner led off the Boston fourth inning with a single. Gedman followed with a single and one out later, Jackie Gutierrez grounded a single between third and short to score Buckner with Boston's eventual winning run.

A's 5, Brewers 4

Alfredo Griffin's tie-breaking single capped a two-out, two-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning that gave Oakland a 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers, snapping the A's seven-game losing streak.

After Jim Kern had pitched three hitless innings in his first appearance of the season, the Brewers sent Rollie Fingers, their third pitcher of the game, to the mound in the ninth to preserve a 4-3 lead.

He retired the first two batters, but Bruce Bochte singled to right and Ray Searage, 0-3, replaced Fingers. Pinch-runner Dan Meyer took second on a single by Mike Davis. Donnie Hill's single to right scored Meyer, then Griffin blooped his game-winning single to center field. The victory went to Keith Atherton, 2-2.

Milwaukee's Bob McClure, in his first start of the season, gave up two runs in the bottom of the first inning on Dave Kingman's fifth homer of the season after the Brewers had scored three runs off former teammate Don Sutton in the top of the first.

Singles by Paul Molitor and Dion James, followed by Cecil Cooper's double, gave Milwaukee its first run. Robin Yount and Ted Simmons then hit RBI grounders.

Angles 3, Jays 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Juan Beniquez' pinch single with two outs in the ninth inning capped a two-run rally to give the California Angels a 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday night.

With Toronto leading 2-1, Ruppert Jones led off the ninth with a single and took second on a sacrifice by Doug DeCinces. Reggie Jackson then drew a walk, and Rob Wilfong singled to score Jones with the tying run.

Reliever Jim Acker took over for Dave Stieb, 1-3, and retired Jerry Narron on a fly to center before Beniquez singled sharply to center to score Jackson with the winning run.

Left-hander Pat Clements pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for the victory.

Earlier, Len Matuszek's single with two outs in the eighth inning broke a 1-1 tie to give Toronto a 2-1 lead.

Jim Slaton hit Lloyd Moseby with a pitch with one out to set the stage for Toronto's tie-breaking run. Moseby stole second before Willie Upshaw walked. George Bell popped out, but Matuszek hit a sharp single into right field to score Moseby.

Kite grabs lead in tourney of champions

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite matched the course and tournament record with an 8-under-par 64 and established a 4-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 MONY Tournament of Champions.

Kite's playing partner in the bright, warm sunshine, U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller, birdied the last two holes for a 68 and was second alone in the elite field that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour events from the last 12 months.

Australian Greg Norman, Wayne Levi, Mark McCumber and Lanny Wadkins were next at 69 in the 27-man field.

"This was kind of a surprise," said Kite, who spread nine "3s" across his card and made his only bogey on the 18th hole at the La Costa Country Club course.

"As you know, I haven't been playing too well lately," he said. "This was kind of like a baby learning to crawl.

"I've been lucky that I haven't had many slumps in my career," said Kite, generally acknowledged as one of the game's most steady, most consistent players.

"Hopefully, I can say this one is over."

Defending champion Tom Watson, a 3-time winner here, could do no better than a 75. Jack Nicklaus bogeyed two of the par-5 holes and shot 74. PGA champ Lee Trevino had the same total. Masters title-holder Bernhard Langer of West Germany struggled to a 76 a was last in the field.

Calvin Peete, who has taken two titles this season and last year won the Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average, became the first man in the 33-year history of this tournament to be disqualified.

Peete, who took an undetermined number of putts on the fifth hole, told Tour official Glen Tait he was unsure of the score he had on the hole. His playing partner and scorer, Curtis Strange, said he did not know Peete's score on the hole.

"When I asked him, he said, 'a nine. No, I hit it once when it was moving, so that's 11. No, I hit it twice when it was moving, so that's 13'," Tait said. In the end, Tait said Peete was unable to definitely determine the number of strokes he had on the hole and so was disqualified.

Wholesale claims A-league victory

TWIN FALLS — Wholesale Carpet downed R.C. Cola 11-7 in A-league slowpitch play Thursday night.

In another A game, Big O Tire had to forfeit when Ray Woolley was injured, leaving the team with just nine plays. The win went to Farmer's National Bank.

In B play, The Pocket downed Video West 12-2 while Ground Round toppled OK Payving 9-3.

Commerical Tire ran off with a C-league win by beating Valley Lift Trucking 16-1 while Wilson-Bates downed Beatrice Chees 11-9 despite a homer by Mickey Rance.

Nordiques oust Canadiens 3-2

MONTREAL (AP) — In the end, the Battle of Quebec came down to a lucky bounce and a single shot.

Peter Stastny poked in defenseman Pat Price's rebound at 2:22 of overtime to lift the Nordiques to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Canadiens to win the best-of-seven Adams Division final 4-3.

The Nordiques advance to face Philadelphia in the National Hockey League Wales Conference final. Game 1 of that series is Sunday night in Quebec City.

"I won the faceoff and I just wanted to get in front of the net and screen (goaltender Steve) Penney," said Stastny. "Suddenly the puck was in front of the net; I took a swing at it and missed.

"I was hoping Alain Cote would be able to push it in but the puck came back to me and I just put it in."

Eagle tracksters take national hopes to Ricks

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

REXBURG — The Region 18 junior college track and field finals are a mere shadow of their former selves — but the competition remains stiff.

The College of Southern Idaho will go against just three other teams Friday and Saturday in men's and women's competition in Ricks' Viking Stadium. North Idaho, Ricks and Treasure Valley will be represented; none of the Utah schools fields track squads and the Oregon community colleges are, of course, long gone from the NJCAA.

Coaches Julius Domowitz and Greg Burch believe there is a possibility of giving Ricks a good run for the team title in the men's division, but, Burch says, "I think our women are in trouble because Ricks looks like it could have the strength to win nationals."

Ricks men again are strong in the field events, particularly the shot put, discus and javelin. CSI is virtually bereft of experience in those areas but Burch notes "we're going to have a lot of guys doing things they've never done before — like the javelin. There are only four teams so each is allowed four entries in each event. We want to get in and pick up some of those fourth- and fifth-place points if we can."

CSI will be strongest, it appears, in the sprints and relays — with Burch considering the 800 meters a sprint because freshman DeVoe Whaley is in that event.

Whaley could see action in the 200, 400 and 800 and run on both CSI relay teams. He has qualified for the NJCAA nationals later this month in Odessa, Texas, in the 400 and 800 by time but after Saturday probably will husband his strength for a major try at the national half-mile crown.

Burch figures Loxley Walters will win the triple jump because "he always just seems to jump what he needs to win. He went 50 feet, 6 inches last week but I'm not so sure he couldn't go 53. He's the Jamaican national champion and I showed him a story in Track and Field News last week where the guy who was second to him down there had gone 52 feet. I think that sparked Loxley a little."

Walters also will be on the relay teams. Another Jamaican, Junior James, will be tough in the regional quarter mile, but that is seen as the centerpiece of junior college events this season.

Burch is pulling for Andy Bopp to cut .4 second off his best time to reach the national 800 qualifying mark of 1:52.5. "Chasing DeVoe this weekend should help him," the coach says.

He anticipates that Tim Donahue has a chance to qualify in the 5,000.

For scoring purposes, he is hopeful Dan McMurrian, a sophomore, can hit a flight of highs. "He's always out with them over the first three hurdles but then they either start to pull away or he drops back some. I don't know what it is," Burch says.

The women's team was never very deep and now is decimated by injuries. Freshmen distance aces Michell Skyles and Jill Tilzey, both Nampa Christian grads, have been sidelined by injuries and will be redshirted this spring.

Anna Castillo could be a strong contender in the 1,500, while Jerome freshman Joni James is expected to hammer her 2:22 half-mile best down against Ricks' strong distance crew.

Freshman Jennifer Whelan is a possibility for the women's heptathlon, but her participation in nationals won't be known until later.

"Everyone submits the best performances and national selects the top 16 to compete," Burch says.

Ailing baseball team faces Chukars and Cards

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Instead of bats, helmets and coaches, College of Southern Idaho's dugout should be filled with stretchers, gauze and surgeons.

That's because the Golden Eagles are seriously ailing as they enter this weekend's pair of 1 p.m. doubleheaders against Region 18 rivals Treasure Valley Community College today and North Idaho College Saturday at Frontier Field.

Six players, all part- or full-time starters, are suffering from injuries that either will sideline them this weekend or limit their availability considerably.

The Eagles' remaining talent should be sufficient for them to retain first place. CSI, 29-13 overall, stands in first place with a 5-1 region record, ahead of TVCC and NIC, each 3-3.

Yet CSI Coach Jim Walker knows the possibility for disaster looms. "It's one of those things were things could turn out all right or things could turn out badly," he said.

Matters already have turned out badly for Shawn Humberger, CSI's shortstop whose average has exceeded .400 for most of the season. During last week's road trip in Utah he broke his left thumb, which now is enveloped in a cast.

Walker said Humberger will probably keep the cast on for six weeks. He'll definitely miss this weekend's action, though a slight chance exists that he could play later.

"If I would let him, he'd play," Walker said. "But I talked to his mom and I said that's not going to happen. Because (the break) is around the tendon."

CSI's hitting punch is weakened further by the absences of outfielder Greg Adelsbach and Kevin Lofthus, who hit in the middle of the order. The hamstring muscle on Adelsbach's left leg which he injured rounding second base against Ricks two weeks ago is still ailing, though Walker might be able to use him as a designated hitter.

Lofthus, CSI's powerful first baseman, is doubtful for this weekend with a sprained left wrist and pulled ligaments in his left thumb. Walker said that last weekend Lofthus "could not simply swing a bat."

Utilityman D.R. Hopwood may have to play despite having bone chips in his left wrist. And earlier this week in practice, third baseman Dave Garro and first baseman-designated hitter Randy Jenks collided, leaving Garro with a stiff neck and Jenks with 10 stitches near his ear.

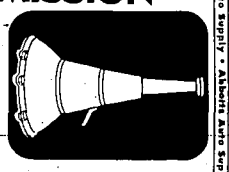

"I hope (the injuries) make us intensify our efforts," Walker said. He added that without his sluggers the Eagles might have to "peck away" for runs, performing tactics like the suicide squeeze and the hit-and run. Ironically, he said, this could work to CSI's advantage since "nobody expects us to do those things."

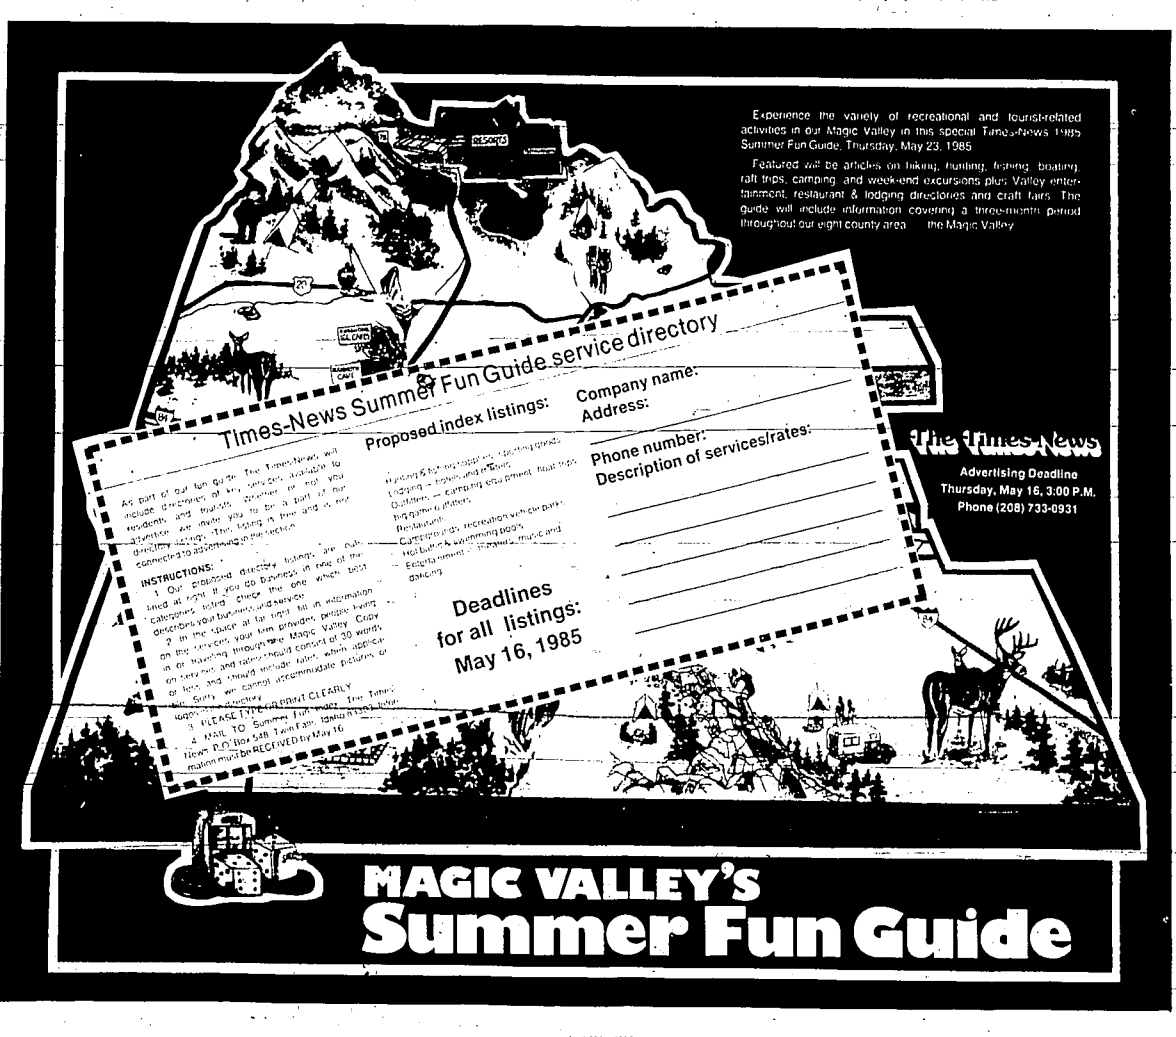

Were everybody healthy, Walker still wouldn't feel totally comfortable. He has been frustrated all season by the Eagles' knack for performing weakly against apparently mediocre pitchers — "The scoring machine has a few dents in it," he said — and botching unchallenging plays.

"I just don't feel we'll ever play up to the potential where people will be consistent," he said. "They've gotta find a way to cinch up the belt, go to work and make the routine plays."

Walker did praise the Eagles' earnestness. "I think this club keeps trying," he said, citing the second game of a double-header last Saturday at Snow College where CSI pulled even after trailing 7-3 in the fifth inning. "They want to play. They do. It's just that we're so conditioned to not responding defensively, and that affects us offensively."

Two more Bruins dismissed

TWIN FALLS — Two more girls were dropped from the Twin Falls track team, making a total of eight dismissed from the boys and girls squad for disciplinary reasons.

"The impact on the girls team is considerable but we still have some moves we can make with individuals," said Coach Jerry Kleinkopf who again declined to make names public. "The latest dismissals will probably take us out of state consideration in the 800 and 1600-meter relays. But because we still can move some people into relays and other events, the affect on the girls team will not be as devastating to the boys."

Kleinkopf said the investigation appears completed now and no more names will be added.

"But it has been a very difficult two days at Twin Falls high school and I think, if anything, if has been harder on (dean) Richard Baun than anyone," the coach concluded.

Twin Falls is scheduled to run in the Gem State Conference finals in Pocatello Saturday.

Nets undergo change

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The principal owner of the New Jersey Nets will be replaced by a committee of three following the sale of his interest in the National Basketball Association team to four other partners, the club announced Thursday.

Joseph Taub, the major stockholder and controlling executive, sold his share to Alan Aufzien, Jerry Cohen, David Gerstein, and Bernie Mann, said Lewis Schaffel, team executive vice president.

Taub will be replaced by an executive committee composed of Gerstein, Aufzien and Mann, Schaffel said. Gerstein will be president of the committee, which will replace Taub in directing the club's affairs.

Race driver dies in crash

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) — Attilio Betteg, one of Italy's leading rally drivers, was killed instantly Thursday when his Lancia crashed on the opening day of the Tour of Corsica, and his teammates withdrew from the World Championship event immediately. Betteg was 32.

Tulane leaves Metro loop

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane University withdrew from the Metro Conference on Thursday, bowing to the wishes of a league that didn't want a member without a basketball program.

Tulane University President Eamon Kelly canceled Tulane's basketball program in the wake of allegations of point shaving and NCAA violations. At the same time, he said he would ask the Metro to waive its rule requiring members to play men's basketball.

Louisville host cup match

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The city of Louisville beat out Boston, Houston and Dallas as the site for the 1985 Davis Cup final matches, if they are held in the United States.

The U.S. Tennis Association announced Wednesday that the matches would be held in 19,-200-seat Freedom Hall Dec. 20-22. In order for the international tennis competition to be held in the United States, however, the U.S. team must reach the finals and have the homecourt advantage.

Eagles snub No. 2 pick

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles said Thursday they would not negotiate with quarterback Randall Cunningham, their second-round pick in the National Football League draft, following reports that Cunningham signed a conditional contract with the Tampa Bay Bandits of the United States Football League.

The Philadelphia Daily News reported in its Thursday editions that Jim Steiner, Cunningham's agent, confirmed that the Nevada-Las Vegas senior had signed a contract with Tampa that gives the Bandits the right to match any offer made by the Eagles.

Tampa bowl put on hold

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has notified city officials that no action will be taken until April 1986 on Tampa's application to host the annual Hall of Fame Bowl.

The NCAA informed the Hall of Fame Bowl Task Force that it would not waive the waiting period required for bowl approval.

Local backers had hoped the NCAA would do so, allowing an immediate transfer of the college football game from Birmingham, Ala., to Tampa.

Carey boys, girls claim loop track titles

CAREY — The Carey Panthers collected both sides of the Northside Conference track and field championships Thursday.

The Panthers dominated in the relays, catching a spark from 800 anchorman Kevin Wellard who picked up about 20 yards for the victory. The Carey girls set three school records in winning their division.

Dodi Youren dropped the intermediate mark from 54.5 to 54.07, the 800-meter relay team trimmed that record to 1:54.8 from 1:58.1 and Robin Conrad boosted the shotput standard to 32 feet.

The same teams will meet at Carey next week qualify for the Fourth District Finals, the last step before state.

Robert Garden puts the finishing touches on a seascape oil painting which he completed in less than 20 minutes

Quick-draw artist to show techniques

By TERRY HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Robert H. Garden, a quick-draw artist from Erving, Texas, claims that anyone can learn to paint and has slated paint-along workshops in Twin Falls to prove it.

Garden will appear at the Holiday Inn May 8 at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. for free public demonstrations of his technique, then has scheduled May 16 and 17 for the workshops.

Garden says that students will complete two oil paintings in one day using his time-saving technique, and it doesn't matter if the student has never held a paint brush before or has painted for 20 years.

"Painting is 90 percent desire and only 10 percent talent," he claims, adding, "You don't have to have all this so-called God given talent."

The Texan says he started painting when he was seven years old and sold his first painting for $80 when he was eight. A humorist as well as artist and author, he says his first brushes were made from hair he cut from the tails of his dog and cat.

Besides putting on seminars nationwide, Garden is author of the books "You Can Paint, I Promise," and "Anyone Can Paint, I Promise," and he has recently completed a pilot for a television series, "You Can Paint."

Displaying his technique during a Times-News interview, the artist says he formulates his own paint which is a special fast-drying medium that makes it possible for the student to complete the work in one sitting. Another technique he uses is "double-loading" a paint brush with a light color on one side and a darker color on the other which he says achieves a more natural color in alignment with nature's colors.

A method he calls "fan brush" is used to create the effect of distance in a painting, while "cloud scrubbing" is used to make clouds the easy way.

"Everything I do, I have a reason for," the artist says. "My students enjoy the classes because I give them a reason for everything in the process."

Garden says he teaches the basics, including color mixing, specialized brush techniques and color theory, and gives individual critiques of each student's oil paintings. He says his methods are applicable to water color as well as oil.

According to the artist, self-confidence is more important than natural talent, and cites an 86-year-old woman he taught to paint as an example. "She was told by her third-grade teacher that she was no good at painting, so she hid the desire all those years," he says. "She cried when she finished her first painting. Anyone can paint."

Daytime workshops for May 16 and 17 will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and a night course will be taught May 16 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuition is $35 for one day, $60 for two days, and $85 for the night class. For further information, call 731-5502.

Summer films offer fantasies

Spielberg to be leading name

By BOB THOMAS
The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — The Western will return, along with James Bond, Mad Max, Big Bird, E.T., and the Ghostbusters, and teen-agers will be cavorting in a variety of fantasies — sexual and otherwise.

That's the outlook for the movie summer of 1985, which the film trade hopes will top last year's record-breaking season.

As usual, it promises to be Steven Spielberg's summer. Last year it was his "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" and "Gremlins." On July 12, Universal is re-releasing "E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial," the most successful movie of all time with $210 million in rentals.

Spielberg's Amblin' Entertainment also will present "Goonies," directed by Richard Donner ("Superman") and featuring teen-agers on "a thrilling, comical and ultimately magical adventure."

Another Spielberg production is "Back to the Future," a comedy adventure directed by Robert Zemeckis about a high school senior played by Michael J. Fox who by an accident is thrust back in time to 1955. There he meets a pair of other teen-agers who are to be his parents.

"All the talk I've heard is that we're headed for a very good summer," said Dan Chernow, spokesman for the 148-screen Pacific Theaters. "The best part is that there will be a fair amount of product. I'm not sure it will be a record summer; that depends on whether we can get one or two blockbusters. You never know. Nobody predicted 'Beverly Hills Cop' would do as well as it did."

Clint Eastwood will be back in the saddle again after a nine-year absence. In "Pale Rider," he plays a "nameless stranger whose justice is both swift and terrible" in a California gold rush town. The movie was filmed in the Stanley Basin north of Sun Valley.

Columbia is releasing another major Western, "Silverado," directed by Lawrence Kasdan ("The Big Chill") and starring Kevin Kline, Scott Glenn and Linda Hunt.

Paramount is offering a gentle spoof of the singing Western, "Rustler's Rhapsody," with Tom Berenger, Andy Griffith and Patrick Wayne doing the spoofing.

What would summer be without James Bond? Roger Moore returns with a new nemesis, rock singer Grace Jones, in "A View to a Kill."

Mel Gibson joins Grammy award-winning singer Tina Turner in "Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome," third in the Australian-made doomsday adventures.

Another return is Sylvester Stallone in "Rambo: First Blood, Part II."

Also in the adventure line is "Lifeforce," a sci-fi thriller about space aliens, with Steve Railsback and Peter Firth, directed by Tobe Hooper ("Poltergeist"), and "Red Sonja," a swords and sorcery picture with Brigitte Nielsen and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Chevy Chase fans get their fill this summer. He'll be serious in "Fletch," as an investigative reporter-sleuth, and comical in "National Lampoon's

Symphony to offer yearly pops show

TWIN FALLS — Two area vocalists will be featured tonight at the Holiday Inn where the Magic Valley Symphony will give its second annual pops concert at 8 p.m.

Soprano Carol Barsness, Twin Falls, and bass Robert Newman, Rupert, will perform as a duet in Mozart's humorous "Pagagena, Papageno" and in a medley of tunes from "Oklahoma" by Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Barsness recently appeared as Jennie in the Music Club's production of "Down in the Valley" and Newman was a soloist last month with the Magic Valley Chorale in Haydn's "Creation."

The rest of the concert will include familiar light classics and contemporary pieces such as "Star Wars." The audience will be provided pretzels and popcorn. Beverages and ice cream cones may be purchased during the two intermissions.

Seating at the Holiday Inn is limited, but tickets, $5 for adults and $3 for students, will be available at Ann's Hallmark until 5 p.m. today. Some tickets may be available at the door. Patron tickets will admit two people for this final concert of the season.

Porcelain Artisans sets china paint, doll show

TWIN FALLS — The Porcelain Artisans have slated a showing and sale of china painting and porcelain dolls crafted by local residents May 4 from 10 a.m to 6 p.m and May 5 from noon to 5 p.m. at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts.

Idaho artisans included in the show are Darlene Arnout, Ruth Stutzman, Ollie Mae Armstrong, Dorothy Purdy, Georgene Mason, Karen Quinton, Janet Bingham, Loretta Kimpton, Jean Shaffer, Marguerite Lanting and Mavis Hamilton.

Special guest for the affair will be Ruby Leirman of Filer, who will display some of her original antique porcelain dolls, while Julie Ward of Twin Falls will show several dolls she recently brought from Germany.

Originating over a thousand years ago in China, the art of porcelain making — as well as its two prime ingredients, kaolin, or china clay, and petuntse, china stone — were kept secret by the Chinese for many years until Europeans discovered the substances and technique.

Yet, today the art has been popularized with the use of molds, porcelain slip and a variety of decorating techniques such as handpainting on glazed or unglazed china, as will be exhibited at the Renaissance showing.

Children's book writer sets autograph session

TWIN FALLS — An afternoon of storytelling and an opportunity to meet the author of "Naya Nuki: Girl Who Ran" and "Soun Tetoken: Nez Perce Boy," is slated for Judi's Bookstore Saturday. Story hour begins at 2 p.m. with an autographing session scheduled from 3 to 4 p.m.

Ken Thomasma, author of the children's books, will come clad in a full elk hide suit and present other fixtures of the era while spinning educational yarns meant to spark children's interest in reading, writing and story telling.

Besides being a writer, Thomasma teaches in Teton County, Wyo., where he instructs first- and second-graders who were allowed to hear readings of the manuscripts of both books, then make suggestions for improvement before publication.

Thomasma's first historical fiction, "Naya Nuki," broke sales records of the 44-year-old Baker Book House Publishing Company, and his second one, published one year ago, is already in its third printing.

Idaho's folk art to come to life at CSI

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A representation of Idaho's most prolific yet least publicized art form will be brought to light at the Herrett Museum May 14 through July 12 when the exhibit, "We Came to Where We Were Supposed to Be: Folk Art of Idaho," will be displayed.

Sponsored by the Idaho Commission on the Arts in cooperation with the Boise Gallery of Art, the exhibit is in the midst of a regional tour. According to Steve Siporin, folk arts coordinator for the commission, over 130 items are displayed in the exhibit that were gathered from 70 Idaho artists.

Siporin notes that he and two other folklorists researched the project during the summer of 1983, taking over 3,000 photos before narrowing down their choices to form the current exhibit.

He describes folk art as, "a craft passed on informally from generation to generation. It is usually functional and is beautiful." Siporin explains that by "functional" he means the particular item doesn't have to be a tool but can be functional in celebration or in bringing a community together.

"Most folk art originates from ethnic or religious communities," he says. "It expresses the values of the community. In Idaho we have Greek, Indian, Mormon, Scandinavian, Mexican and many other groups represented."

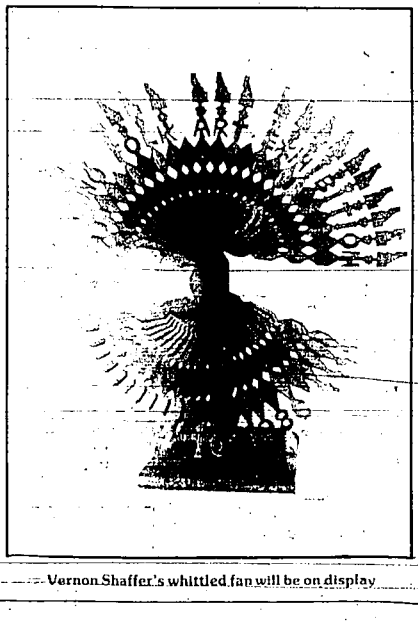

Siporin points out that to be folk art the technique must not be unique, rather it must exist in numbers, be distributed in both time and space, and be able to be passed on from one generation to the next.

Siporin says that many of the objects in the exhibit are regularly used by their owners, filling practical needs as well as aesthetic ones. The exhibition categories reflect the uses and contexts of the objects: "Working on the Land," "Beauty in the Home," "Whimsey and Recreation" and "Ceremony and Celebration."

According to Siporin, the philisophical value of the exhibit is to show patrons that art isn't just something that comes from Europe — isn't just far away. "Hopefully," he says, "what is familiar gets redefined as valuable. I want people who view the exhibit to go home and recognize things around them as folk art."

Also available at the Herrett will be a 120-page catalog with over 150 black-and-white and color photographs of Idaho folk art and artists which includes an introduction and four essays on Idaho Folk art. Cost of the catalog is $7.50.

An opening reception for the exhibit, sponsored by the Magic Valley Arts Council and Idaho First National Bank will be held May 14 at 7 p.m. The reception and daily admittance is free to the public. Museum hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Wednesday through Friday, and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Old-time rafting on Salmon on film

SUN VALLEY — Magic Valley's river rats will be given an opportunity to view the Middle Fork of the Salmon River as it was 60 years ago when four Idahoans set off in two wooden canoes, attempting the first boat trip down that part of the river.

Historian Cort Conley will be showing three films of the 1920s and 1930s at Elkhorn, May 4 at 8 p.m. The films offer a glimpse into the river's past before the current, high-tech trips of today.

The oldest footage was taken in 1926 by Henry Weidner on a six-month trip in an Old Town wooden canoe. Weidner used a 50-pound, hand crank camera to shoot his film, "The Trip of a Thousand Thrills." After a lengthy search, Conley came across the film last year at the Oregon Historical Society.

The second film is from a 1936 trip taken in four wooden row boats, while the final film was composed in 1939 and shows scenes of the pioneers, their homesteads and the wild animals that inhabited their canyon.

Along with the films, Conley will spin stories of the past while he tells about the making of the films, and local musician Lynnette Hart will provide background music.

A drawing also will be held with the winner receiving a one-day float trip on the main Salmon River donated by Randy Hess of White Otter Outdoor Adventures.

Tickets are $5 adults; $2.50 for children under 12, and are available at Ex Libris, the Coffee Grinder, Chapter One, the Sound Socket in Hailey and from members of the Idaho Conservation League.

Gershwin is featured for final Candlelight

SUN VALLEY — The final concert of the Spring Candlelight Concerts series, "An Evening With Gershwin," is being held May 4 in the Sun Valley Lodge Dining Room. A four-course meal will be served at 7 p.m. with curtain at 9:30 p.m.

In the role of Gershwin, pianist Thomas Wright will recreate the music and mood of the 1920s and 1930s, describing in Gershwin's own words how the music was composed. Wright will play favorites including "Rhapsody in Blue," "An American in Paris," music from "Porgy and Bess," and show music from Broadway and Hollywood.

Wright has appeared as soloist with leading symphony orchestras and in concerts throughout the U.S. According to the pianist, while a small boy he heard Gershwin play in concert and became attracted to his music. Later, he studied all the scores of Gershwin and is now recognized by critics as one of the foremost interpreters of Gershwin's music.

As soloist with the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, Wright performed the "Rhapsody in Blue" 91 times during a nationwide tour. He has since founded and currently produces the Gershwin Festival concerts which present all the major works of Gershwin at Florida State University.

Tickets, $30 for reserved seating and $50 for reserved patron seating, are on sale at the Sun Valley Center Gallery in Ketchum (726-9491) and the Sun Valley Company (622-4111, ext. 2101). Price includes dinner, tax, gratuity and the concert.

Film review

HOLLYWOOD — Does anyone else out there feel like a social outcast when conversation turns to the movies people "love" recently? For me, the choice is to fall mute at parties to keep from making public scenes or to stuff hard-boiled-egg-and-anchovy canapes in my mouth, which makes others also prefer that I not talk.

Enough of this tyranny.

Currently circulating are a couple of what I have come to regard as Emperor's New Clothes Movies. Right at the top of that list is "Blood Simple" (or "Simple Blood," as it is thought of over here in the pariah's quarters) and "The Gods Must Be Crazy."

What has been singled out about these movies is what's so staggering: the playful quality of "Blood Simple," for example, which leaves you utterly unprepared for its grislıness. Or the quote from one critic that its series of misunderstandings "grow in hilarity even as they remain strictly logical." You can even read that "Blood Simple" is a debut whose assurance compares with that of "Citizen Kane." My sainted aunt!

The young Coen brothers, who wrote and directed "Blood Simple," are long on slick glossy style, no dispute, and they have a nice way with actors. But in this case, style is the sleight-of-hand used to divert us from the thinness of the plot. There is also a difference between assurance and arrogance, and as to its logic, in "Blood Simple" logic is something that is never even tried.

I have always suspected that audiences feel departures from sensible behavior as a sort of disturbance factor, even when they have not puzzled out what it was that disturbed them. "Blood Simple" couldn't exist if anyone in it ever pulled their blinds. Even in Texas I don't believe that an adulterous couple — even an admittedly not-too-bright one on the lam from a dangerous husband — would carry on, in every possible situation, in front of open windows.

That is the very smallest part of why "Blood Simple" drives me wild. What no one writing about the film seems to have felt is the deep unpleasantness of this exercise in empty style, even if you concede the brilliant joke of its final shot, a dying man's-eye view of the ultimate banality. Please, no letters that that was only a small part of a larger joke. "Blood Simple" is phony "Diabolique" and the joke is on us.

"The Gods Must Be Crazy" presents a different problem: Try suggesting at a crowded party full of fans of "The Gods" that it succeeds because it continues comfortable racial stereotypes and that its viewpoint toward its engaging central character, a Botswana bushman, is deeply patronizing, and you can have the room to yourself in no time.

This fevered farce about the damage wrought by a tossed Coca-Cola bottle has virtually become sacrosanct, and never more so than with the news that it has grossed $90 million worldwide since 1981. Jamie Uys, its white, South African writer, producer, director, occasional actor prop man and editor, sounds nicely deprecating in his interviews, which have relocubled recently as he tools up for "Gods II." In more than one interview, he stresses that everyone in his film is funny, white, black or brown — that what you look for in comedy is the funny side of the human condition, and you don't see the color.

Sorry, but I still think it's a film with an insidious point of view, although I don't doubt that on Uys' part it is on an almost unconscious level. You get a hint of that from his answers in a New York Times interview last weekend. Asked about apartheid and hint of whose existence appears in his movie, Uys answered: "I think it's a mess. We've done some silly, naughty things we're ashamed of. We're trying to dismantle it, but it's a very complicated thing. If you go too slow it's bad, and if you ruin the economy everyone will starve...."

Silly and naughty. With the breadth of the English language at his command, those were the two words Uys chose to describe the ingrained shame of apartheid. It may be just that attitude that makes it hard to feel completely comfortable with "The Gods Must Be Crazy."

But why have these two films been so hysterically received? Critics, I suspect, glory in finding new talent; to a degree, they set themselves up to be seduced. "Blood Simple" is an American independent, already a plus in its favor. And when a film gets on a critical roll, it generates a momentum of its own.

In the case of "The Gods," its pixilated, Three Stooges surface (as well as the undeniable and irresistible charm of the Bushman N!Xau(eq) may have tempted audiences not to look beneath a jokey surface at the message that is really contained in that bottle.

'Redneck Review' on sale in region

FAIRFIELD — The 10th annual publication of Camas Writer's Workshop, "The Redneck Review of Literature," is now available for $5 at the Country Kitchen restaurant in Fairfield or can be ordered with 75 cents extra for postage from the organization at Rt. 1, Box 1085, Fairfield 83327.

The 1985 edition features three prize-winning stories from the workshop's nationwide fiction contest as well as some new Idaho poets, fiction and essays paralleling the lives of people in the Intermountain West.

According to spokeswoman Penelope Reedy, the "Review" is beginning to gain recognition in the western U.S., with several university libraries now subscribing to it and submissions coming from a broader range of writers each season.

"We encourage writers and poets to submit their work to us for consideration," she says, cautioning. "Next year we will have a February 1 deadline for material instead of our usual one March 1 so that publishing can be completed before the editors start farming."

Music clubs gather for Burley convention

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The theme for the Idaho State Federation of Music Clubs biennial convention, held this weekend at the Best Western Burley Inn, is "Even Greater Tomorrows."

Mary Prudy Brown of Stanton, Texas, first vice president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, is attending as national guest delegate and says she is impressed with the enthusiasm and hospitality of the Idaho delegates.

"Idaho hospitality is very Southern," says Brown.

Brown says the convention's theme is appropriate for Idaho because of the many projects being carried out by Idaho clubs.

"The basic mandate of the federation is to promote good music in all areas, including the total spectrum of the fine arts," says Brown.

One Idaho project of special note, says State Parliimentarian Mary Vincent, Filer, is an $8,000 fund raised by clubs throughout the state to help continue the musical training of Kimberly pianist Mark Neiwirth, who is currently studying in New York.

She says Neiwirth has been syndicated as guest soloist for the Community Concert series and will be returning to Idaho next season in concert appearances in Idaho Falls and Boise.

Another state fund-raising project netted $20,000 for federation-sponsored summer music camps throughout the state, including "Music Fest 85" to be held on the College of Southern Idaho campus this summer, says Vincent.

She says James Keezer, conductor of the Mini-Cassia Magic Philharmonic Orchestra which performed Thursday for the convention, will be a member of the CSI camp's faculty.

The orchestra performed an original composition by Keezer, which is in keeping with another of the federation's goals — the promotion of American music and American composers, says Brown.

Brown will speak Friday evening at the formal installation banquet for new state officers.

European Vacation."

Richard Pryor returns after an extended absence in "Brewster's Millions." He plays an heir who is required to spend $30 million in 30 days.

Other comedies are "Beer," with Loretta Swit as an ad woman who startles the beer industry; "Real Genius," about two roommates at a high-tech college; "Summer Rental," with John Candy, Richard Crenna and Rip Torn and directed by Carl Reiner; "The Man With One Red Shoe," with Tom Hanks and Lori Singer and directed by Stan Dragoti ("Mr. Mom").

Advance screenings of "Cocoon" have produced good reports. It's an offbeat fantasy about space visitors who mingle with Floridians, while searching for a long-lost secret. The cast includes Steve Guttenberg, Don Ameche, Hume Cronyn and Gwen Verdon.

"Perfect," with John Travolta as a reporter looking into the fitness world, has also been well touted. Summer is not the time for drama, but there is hope for "Prizzi's Honor," John Huston's film with Jack Nicholson as a Mafia chieftain and Kathleen Turner as a free-lance killer.

There will be an outpouring of films concerning young people in funny and/or dangerous situations: "Fright Night," "Gotcha!," "Secret Admirer," "Heavenly Kid," "Weird Science," "American Flyers," "Fair Is Fair," "Explorers."

Walt Disney Studios is releasing two of its most ambitious undertakings: "Return to Oz," a continuation of the classic story, and "The Black Cauldron," the studio's first animated feature in four years.

For the younger trade, there's "Sesame Street Presents: Follow That Bird," starring Big Bird, from Warner Bros.

"I think it should be a very solid summer," said Bruce Corwin, president of the 50-screen Metropolitan Theatres. "The Bond picture is predictably a winner. I think 'Rambo' should be tremendous, and I'm very high on 'Perfect,' the Travolta movie. Most exhibitors I've talked to put 'Goonies' at the top of their lists as the big winner of the summer."

NBC continues ratings resurgence with four top programs

NEW YORK (AP) — Following its best regular season performance in a decade, NBC had the four highest-rated programs and continued its ratings resurgence with a prime-time victory for the week of April 22-28, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed Tuesday.

"The Cosby Show," the most successful new series in six years, was No. 1 again with a 24.6 rating. "Family Ties," which has blossomed this season following "Cosby," was No. 2. "Cheers," the next show on NBC's powerful Thursday lineup, was third. NBC's Tuesday hit, "The A-Team," was fourth.

NBC's "Miami Vice" cracked the Top 10 for the first time, finishing in ninth. Gerald Jaffe, NBC's vice president for research projects, predicted that "Miami Vice," up against a serial (CBS' "Falcon Crest") that hasn't repeated well in past reruns seasons, will be one of the top three shows this summer.

NBC wound up the week with a 14.2 average rating. (A rating measures the percentage of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes tuned to a particular network.) ABC, with no show in the Top 10 but with the improving "Who's the Boss?" in 11th place, was second with a 13.0 rating. CBS, the prime-time leader each of the past six seasons, averaged a 12.8.

CBS had five series in the Top 10 — No. 5 "Kate & Allie," No. 6 "Crazy Like A Fox," No. 7 "60 Minutes," No. 8 "Newhart" and No. 10 "Murder, She Wrote" — but the network was hurt by the weak showing of "[illegible] King," the three-hour movie that pre-empted "Dallas" and "Falcon Crest" on Friday night.

CBS' own programmers panned the movie and scheduled it for a less important week — the week between the end of the regular season and the start of the May sweeps. A sweeps [illegible], which comes four times a year, is when ratings are measured for local stations to determine future ad rates.

The networks, which are measured by Nielsen on a daily basis, save some original programming for May to bolster their affiliates' ratings. Of particular importance are the prime-time shows leading into the local stations' late-night news broadcasts.

The networks' combined 40.0 rating last week — the season average, in itself, was a record low 48.5 — reflected the abundant number of reruns.

The 30-week prime-time season, which ended April 21 with CBS in first and NBC in second for the only time in [illegible] a fixed time period established by the networks and advertisers.

Coleman shocked by death of show

GARY COLEMAN
Child roles 'demeaning'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Coleman, diminutive star of NBC's "Diff'rent Strokes," says he was shocked when the series was canceled, even though he told the network he wanted to leave the show to do adult roles.

"I want to say I had nothing at all to do with the decision to cancel," said Coleman, 17, who portrays a child on the series. "NBC acted of its own accord. I was canceled for some strange reason. I'd like to know why."

NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, contacted in New York by the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, said Coleman himself was responsible for the decision.

"Two months ago, in a personal meeting with me, Gary said he did not want to return to 'Diff'rent Strokes,'" Tartikoff said. Coleman's agent, Vic Perillo, confirmed that Coleman "was very, very serious about not coming back" when he spoke to Tartikoff.

Based on Coleman's statements, NBC started to plan a schedule without "Diff'rent Strokes," Tartikoff said.

"A couple of weeks ago, Gary changed his mind," Tartikoff said. "It was only a few days ago that he was able to arrive at an agreement with Embassy TV (the producing company)."

By that time, the network had proceeded far into its new schedule and had strong shows planned, he said. In addition, NBC felt that the ratings possibilities were limited for the series, which has run for six seasons, he said.

Coleman has starred in the half-hour comedy since he was 10 in 1978. He and Todd Bridges portray two black youngsters raised by a wealthy white man played by Conrad Bain.

Coleman admitted Wednesday that he was getting bored with the show and that his continued appearance as a child — made possible because congenital kidney problems stunted his growth — was demeaning.

"Absolutely," he said. "We live in a modern world. Let's live in a modern world."

Embassy spokeswoman Barbara Broglatti said Coleman is "healthy for the first time in his life. He literally wanted to re-evaluate, and we felt he should. He's an adult now."

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

G: General Audiences, all ages admitted.

PG: Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

R: Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

X: No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

The annals of a Page

Guitar master finds audiences like new songs

By RICHARD DE'ATLEY
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Guitar master Jimmy Page, late of Led Zeppelin, and now a senior partner in The Firm, likes what he doesn't hear from concert audiences.

"We don't get any shouts for the old stuff, so we must have something going," said Page during a recent appearance here by the group which includes former Bad Company lead singer Paul Rodgers.

Though the 41-year-old Page and Rodgers, 35, wrote most of the group's music, there's barely enough original material for a two-hour concert. Still, Page's determined not to trot out any Led Zeppelin or Bad Company chestnuts.

"We want to do whatever's good, and whatever's new," said Page in an interview, adding that he was not trying to aim the group in any musical direction. "When we started writing songs for the LP, a lot of them came from thin air."

The Firm, which also includes young bassist Tony Franklin and drummer Chris Slade, breaks no new ground with its first album, but harvests its popularity from some well-tilled rock 'n' roll fields.It is music that is not likely to attract the spiky-haired or the studded leather wristband set.

The solid musicianship of Page and Rodgers' distinctive vocals are the group's chief assets, and their presence alone may have generated their debut album's success on the charts. But it may take a second LP to judge where The Firm actually fits in the rock 'n' roll scene.

Released by Atlantic Records, the LP titled after the group's name was No. 21 on Billboard Magazine's top pop album chart for the week of April 27. It had reached a high of No. 17 and was certified gold — 500,000 records and cassettes sold — on April 15.

"Radioactive," a single released from the album along with a video clip, was listed No. 46 on Billboard's "Hot 100" singles, down from two weeks at the No. 28 spot.

JIMMY PAGE
Led Zeppelin founder

The Firm's members are masters of their trade, know how to produce good sounds and put on a show for concert crowds.

The presence of Rodgers and Page could provoke plenty of requests from those who remember Led Zeppelin, formed in 1968 and dissolved in 1980 when drummer John Bonham died of a heart attack.

Page and other Led Zeppelin members — vocalist Robert Plant and bass-keyboard player John Paul Jones — have said over the years that the group would never come together again because the spirit of the original band could not be recreated without Bonham.

The group produced such hits as "Whole Lotta Love" and "Immigrant Song." And "Stairway to Heaven" was the big hit on FM rock radio stations during the 1970s.

Page did studio sessions 20 years ago for The Who and Van Morrison's old group, Them, including guitar work on "Gloria," which was to 1960s radio play what "Stairway to Heaven" was to the '70s.

Rodgers' association with Page goes back at least to the early '70s, when Bad Company's albums were released in the United States on Led Zeppelin's Swan Song label. His first U.S hit was "All Right Now" recorded in 1970 when he was with the short-lived British group, Free.

Bad Company's biggest hits include "Can't Get Enough" in 1974 and "Feel Like Makin' Love" in 1975.

Led Zeppelin, with its strong sexual messages derived from early American blues songs and Page's interest in the occult and mysticism, was the first rock group termed "heavy metal" by critics.

"I know that we were labeled 'heavy metal,' and we certainly fit that category in some areas," Page said. "But in some of our sounds, you could hear a pin drop between notes. That's not how I see heavy metal music now. But I guess we were embryonic of that whole thing."

Page said he likes current heavy metal groups "because it's not polite music."

Julian Lennon carries himself well

By BRUCE NIXON
Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS — For a greenhorn whose introduction to the road has been arena-sized halls — which usually are the culmination of a rock career rather than the beginning — Julian Lennon deported himself pretty well.

He is green, and while the music fell somewhere between middle-of-the-road power pop and bubblegum, Lennon had a particularly strong band and a wildly enthusiastic crowd that helped compensate for some of his inexperience.

Lennon, whose dawning rock 'n' roll career has been somewhat overshadowed by the unavoidable fact that he is the son of the late Beatle John Lennon, released his first album late last year and now is in the midst of his first tour. His show here at the Dallas Convention Center arena Saturday night was solid enough, as arena shows go, although his performance, too, ultimately trodded the middle path.

Very good sound and excellent lights went a long way, and the hand of a professional choreographer showed in the way Lennon handled himself on stage — a little mannered, but clever and energetic.

Then, too, with just one album under his belt, Lennon's material was bound to be pretty unsurprising, and, indeed, it was. The exciting unpredictability and variety that more experienced performers can manage with a large repertoire is something that will only be solved with time.

Lennon simply slogged through the whole record and a B-side from one of his singles and then killed some more time with one of the longest band introductions you would ever not want to see in an arena. His set lasted barely more than an hour, and with a magician doing a short opening set, this show was not exactly great bargain.

In any case, Lennon functioned mainly as vocalist, taking center stage, and moving behind a piano for several songs during the set.

Old-style radio show entertains

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The rich, acoustical music of the Tennessee and Virginia mountains has become one of the most popular sounds on the national airwaves.

Millions of fans of National Public Radio's "Down Home Music" series are tapping their toes and clapping their hands to the backwoods blend of guitars, fiddles and banjos.

The 13-part show, now in its second year, features such performers as the Carter Family Fold, John Hartford and Ralph Stanley and his Clinch Mountain Boys. The series airs recordings of live performances at the 150-seat "Down Home," a barnwood-paneled club in Johnson City, Tenn., in the far northeast corner of the state.

Not only is "Down Home Music" loved by its fans, but a resolution by Tennessee Legislature hailed the program as "a showcase of traditional and progressive acoustic music."

Co-producer Phil Lepnard said 1 million people listen to the shows, hearing such songs as "Wildwood Flower" by the Carters, "Take Me Back to Tulsa" by Asleep at the Wheel and "My Little Glass of Wine" by Stanley.

"It's a musical genre pretty much neglected by commercial radio stations," the 36-year-old Leonard said in a telephone interview. "Those on the country side stick with the Top 40 of the day, and if they play something acoustic it's once a week late on Sunday night or something like that."

One reason for the show's appeal, he said, is "the energy felt in the small intimate setting versus a large festival setting or a large indoor concert. In a very small room, you have a feeling of closer rapport with the artist and the artist feels the response in a different way."

Leonard, program director for station WETS-FM in Johnson City, said the listening audience is a hybrid of people who grew up enjoying Appalachian music and others who are just discovering it and can not hear it elsewhere.

"We enjoy that fact — to give folks something they are missing, and others music that they've never heard before," he said.

Another featured performer on "Down Home Music" has been fiddler Charlie Osborne, now 94, described by Leonard as "just one of the several treasures in this area." "He didn't learn by listening to 78s, but rather by sitting next to a potbelly stove and learning from other family members and neighbors," Leonard said. "All the tradition and heritage of this music is still alive in people like him.

'Stick' moves into No. 1 spot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After four weeks at the top of the box office chart, "Police Academy 2" dropped to third place last weekend, edged out by newcomers "Stick" and "Just One of the Guys."

"Stick," a Universal production directed by and starring Burt Reynolds as a just-released convict, debuted as the top grossing film of the weekend with $3.4 million at 1,173 screens.

In second place was Columbia's "Just One of the Guys" about a high school girl who masquerades as a boy. In the first weekend, the film, which is advertised with a picture of a girl in a boys' locker room, grossed $3.3 million on 1,215 screens.

"Police Academy 2," a Warner Bros. police spoof, fell to No. 3 with a weekend gross of $3 million. The film has taken in $42 million in five weeks.

In a lock-step decline with "Police Academy 2" was Fox's "Moving Violations," a comedy about traffic school which dropped from No. 2 to No. 4 in its second weekend of release. It grossed $2.2 million for a total of $6.5 million in two weeks.

Universal's "Mask" starring Cher as the mother of a deformed boy, Warner Bros.' "Ladyhawke," a medieval action-adventure starring Matthew Broderick and Orion's "Desperately Seeking Susan" starring pop singer Madonna, took the next three places with $2.1 million each.

In its sole discretion, HUD will only pay discount points which HUD determines to be reasonable within maximum limits established by HUD. Buyers are to determine HUD's maximum allowable discount points, if any, prior to negotiations with lenders on interest rates and discount points to be charged on the loan. All other discount points beyond those HUD will pay are the responsibility of the buyer.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"We must ask where we are and whither we are tending."
— Abraham Lincoln.

What's the best way to play today's trump suit? If you think you can give the answer by looking only at trumps, back off. The right answer depends upon how many losing tricks there are in the side suits.

In the everyday game, South wins dummy's spade ace and cashes dummy's trump king. Next he leads a low trump, intending to finesse, but East's discard is upsetting news. South must now lose two trumps, one club and one diamond for one down.

The "normal" play of the trump suit is correct when South must avoid losing any trump tricks. It is foolish when South can afford to lose one trump trick but not two.

The best plan for 10 tricks is to win the opening lead in hand and to lead a diamond toward dummy. If dummy's diamond king is a winner, South can afford a trump loser; if not, he must play for all five trump tricks.

When the diamond king proves a winner, a safety play in trumps is available. To guard against two trump losers, South cashes the trump ace and leads low to dummy's eight. This play prevents two trump losers against any 4-1 distribution and is essential to the success of today's game.
